That Time... ...Again

THE SEASON . . .
. . . of Pre-Christmas arrived in Menlo Park this week, with Yuletide decorations being installed and an autumnal nip in the air to keep it traditional. Above, Tony Lewis of the street department finishes one of the installations of a downtown Yule decoration; at right, Cindy Doyle of 91 Parkwood Drive in Atherton looks through one of the huge, inflatable "candy canes" used in the display.

Parking: Merchants Are Told The Rules for Getting More

If downtown merchants want more offstreet parking, they'll have to:

1. Figure on paying for it.

2. Forget about shunting all-day parkers onto residential streets.

3. Calculate a method of including additional offstreet parking in the present business district.

These were some of the limits spelled out by the Menlo Park City council Tuesday night, as it reviewed parking policy with Robert Starkweather, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Parking committee.

Starkweather's group is to start a series of meetings within the next few days, at which creation of additional offstreet parking will be discussed.

Starkweather said he appeared because he wanted to know the council's philosophy about offstreet parking before his committee opened their study.

Councilmen also rejected the idea of limiting time allocations for parking.

Possibility of installing parking meters wasn't discussed.

"What you ultimately want," Mayor William R. Lawson summarized, "is all parking spaces occupied except one."

Starkweather opened the discussion by asking whether the council thought it would be proper if merchants themselves—and their employees—parked on residential streets so there would be more space for shoppers in the downtown area.

Councilmen were unanimous in disapproving of the idea.

Starkweather asked if the council felt the downtown area should be expanded, so that offstreet parking could be expanded also.

Councilmen indicated they felt that the downtown business area would grow, but said they felt that if it was allowed to do so too rapidly, blighted areas would be the result.

Starkweather suggested that double or triple-deck parking be installed.

Possibly, he said, portions of the third deck could be rented out for shops; the rental could be used to defray the cost of the installation.

Councilmen agreed that the possibility should be explored.

Finally, the councilmen agreed that further discussion should take place after City Engineer Edwin H. Smith completes a report currently in the making.

He is preparing a new parking district assessment plan, which should be ready for council review in the next two weeks.

In Ravenswood:

Land Swap Seen as Beneficial

Palo Alto-owned tidelands property now within San Mateo County "may be" opened for industrial development — if a proposed San Mateo County-Santa Clara County land exchange goes through.

San Mateo County Manager E. R. Stallings made the qualiifed statement during a question-and-answer session with Ravenswood City School District trustees Monday night.

The board is considering whether it should ask that proposed state legislation now being drawn up by the negotiators leave out mention of the school district boundaries.

The point at issue: The Ravenswood district will lose potentially valuable industrial territory if the new San Francisquito channel becomes the new boundary for both county and school district. Some 159 acres, including the Palo Alto airport and yacht harbor, are involved.

But, said Stallings, Palo Alto has stated that it may open 321 acres of low-lying land north from the creek channel to Cooley landing for industrial leases.

The opening of this land is definitely contingent upon success of the land swap, Stallings said in answer to a question from trustee Dr. Andrew White.

However, he said he did not know if Palo Alto would back away from the commitment if the Ravenswood district wanted to retain the present school district boundaries in spite of a county boundary change.

Stallings said that he would prefer to see the school district boundaries conform to the county lines.

"This is our desire, pending action of your school board," Stallings said. "I think it would be a benefit, not a detriment, to make a clean sweep in this matter."

Trustee Charlotte Roden asked Stallings' opinion of the possible reclaimable land which the district might lose. The county manager said he did not "see any great potential at present" in the tideland beyond Palo Alto airport.

"That's Palo Alto-owned land anyhow," he pointed out.

Earlier in the discussion, Stallings said that the major reason for the land swap was to stabilize the wandering county boundaries.

At one end, Skyline Boulevard is criss-crossed several times by the county line, making it almost impossible to plan for development, Stallings said. At the other, Palo Alto's plans to improve the airport and yacht harbor are stymied by the boundary situation, he said.

San Mateo county would gain less property at the Skyline end than they will be giving up in the tidelands area — but Palo Alto has promised several benefits to San Mateo County.

Among them are the industrial land development, dissolving of a levy which Palo Alto Gardens residents must pay because their sewer lines connect to the Palo Alto system, and use of improved yacht harbor and airport facilities by San Mateo County residents, Stallings said.

The Palo Alto Gardens sewer charge amounts to $1.25 per house each month.

White pointed out that Palo Alto's opening of the city-owned land for development "was a supposition" at this point.

"It is," Stallings admitted, "but if this land is developed industrially, you will gain much more in revenue. Right now, the land is not open."

White also asked if Palo Alto is pressing for a change in school boundaries to coincide with the county change.

"No, I don't believe so," Stallings said. "I think we (the negotiators) just naturally assumed that they would change until we found that the educational code indicated otherwise."

Trustee Roy Seagraves also quizzed Stallings on assessment procedures and said he didn't think that having a school district in two counties would cause as much bookkeeping trouble as Stallings thought it might.

Pomeroy said he thought the board should give careful consideration to a position on the land swap if the Palo Alto industrial land development was contingent upon it.

Dist. Supt. Roderic V. Moore pointed out that the school district has a District Attorney's opinion to the effect that the counties cannot act to change school district boundaries without the school board's consent.

Stallings agreed to check further with Palo Alto authorities and present a formal request to the trustees for action in the near future.

The school board also cancelled the meeting which would have taken place on Monday, Dec. 24. They will meet on Monday, Dec. 10, which will be the final session of the year.

A progress report on the joint program to assist culturally-underprivileged students was set aside — because there was none to report.

Budget Study Open Session Is Tonight

Progress that has been made in study of possible future budgets of the Menlo Park School District will be aired at a public meeting tonight.

The session, to be held at 8 p.m. at Hillview School multiuse room, will feature a report from the district's Budget Study Committee. They will report on progress made thus far in projecting what permissive tax rate maximum should be asked for the future.

The citizens' committee most recently has been studying data prepared by School District Business Manager John Richert, which has traced rising costs, average daily attendance and other factors, on which to base a projection of rises which might be expected through 1968.

However, the administration data offered no opinions as to what those costs might be; it was indicated that it will be the job of the citizens' committee to draw its own conclusions.

Richert's reports included figures on enrollment, average daily attendance, assessed valuation, tax rates, expenditures and income.

The tables were arranged in a "do it yourself" format to aid members of the panel, headed by Frank Lodato, in working toward their own conclusions.

The committe hopes to have its report ready for the board early next year.

It has been charged by the school district board of trustees with recommending a permissive tax rate maximum to be sought in an election early next year, when such an election should be held and the number of years the proposed tax rate should remain in force.

The committee is serving in an advisory capacity, however; school board members made it clear that they would retain responsibility for final decision on the election.

A new permissive tax rate election was made necessary this year with the defeat, twice, of a proposal to raise the district's present permissive tax rate maximum from its present $1.99 to a proposed $2.49 per $100 assessed valuation.

Failure to pass a new tax rate proposal of some sort early next year will result in an automatic drop in the permissive tax rate maximum to a figure of 90 cents per $100.

Killed:

BULLET PLAY

The bullet-ridden body of Almon W. Roth, paper company executive of Portola Valley, was found early yesterday at the rear of his factory in Santa Clara.

The dead man, about 40 years of age and a resident of 1 Grove Court, was the owner of the Bayshore Paper Co.

Santa Clara police said company employees discovered Roth and the body of his truck driver, Gilbert Thomson, about 8 a.m., in a pickup truck. Thomson, also dead from bullet wounds, had a revolver in his hand which, police said, had discharged four bullets.

Roth was handcuffed when found. A trail of blood led to the truck from the front of the building, investigators said.

An air of mystery surrounded the case yesterday, although police were considering a possible suicide.

How to Make Hot Dogs In Garage

The family dog apparently didn't feel warm enough the evening of Nov. 21.

So he pushed his straw-filled bed too close to the water heater in the garage where he was quartered, at the Roger Whitmire home at 1205 Hillview Drive.

Result? A call to firemen at 7:38 p.m., when the straw ignited.

Firemen said that damage resulting from Towser's experiment was minor.

Roy Seagraves Named Judge Of Muni Court

ROY SEAGRAVES

Municipal Judge-Elect Roy Seagraves of Menlo Park is to be sworn in, in ceremonies set for 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 30, at the municipal courtroom formerly occupied by Judge E. J. Ryan at the Hall of Justice and Records, Redwood City.

Governor Edmund G. Brown this week announced his appointment of Roy W. Seagraves, 53, Menlo Park attorney, to the Municipal Court of San Mateo County.

"I am very happy to appoint Roy Seagraves to the Municipal Court," Governor Brown said. "He has a broad experience as an attorney and his service as a municipal judge in Washington will be very valuable."

Seagraves has a law office at 928 Middlefield Road, Redwood City. He lives with his wife, Audrey, and two children, Dorna Lou, 12, and Gordon Edwin, 11, at 955 Peninsula Way here.

A Democrat, Seagraves was born in Indiana and reared in Ohio. He took his law degree from the University of Washington, Seattle, and was a municipal judge in Washington before going into the Marines.

He passed the California Bar examination in 1946 and has practiced privately in San Mateo since then.

Seagraves has been a member of the Board of Trustees of Ravenswood City Elementary School District and was on the San Mateo Democratic Central Committee for 14 years.

He also has been active in the Redwood City Chamber of Commerce and the United Crusade.

Emerald Lake Seeks Annex To Woodside

A bid to annex the Highlands of Emerald Lake section to the Town of Woodside will be formally considered for the first time tonight by the Woodside Planning Commission.

The annexation request comes from 214 registered voters living in a small area adjacent to the Easter Cross near California Way. The area also adjoins the Canada Annex, residential section brought into Woodside during the past year.

E. Douglas Keith, spokesman for the group, said the residents desire annexation because they feel more closely akin to Woodside's rural-type atmosphere. The Highlands was originally developed as a summer home area.

The commission also will consider a conditional use permit application from Captain Erland Nelson. He seeks it to operate a private recreational facility and boarding stable at 230 Family Farm Drive.

Rabies Clinic Set for Here Next Sunday

Third annual San Mateo County Rabies Vaccination Clinics will be held Dec. 2, it was announced this week by the county department of public health and welfare.

In this area, the clinic will be conducted at the Menlo Park Fire District headquarters station, 300 Middlefield Road, from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

The clinics are jointly sponsored by the county department of health and welfare and the Peninsula Veterinary Medical Association.

A nominal fee is charged per vaccination.

Portola Valley:

Two Views of Education

The Portola Valley School Board stressed today that a new two-pronged educational proposal has no connection whatever with the school district's bond election set for next February 5.

In a letter sent out yesterday, the board reiterated that the $140,000 bond proposal is primarily for the construction of four new classrooms at the Ormondale School.

The educational plan advanced by Supt. Arthur Banta last week could be instituted without the additional bonds or four classes, the board stressed.

The plan is still very much in the talking stage, according to Board Chairman Dr. Milton Flocks. He said the board will begin considering it at its December 18 meeting.

Banta's proposal attempts to solve the differences in educational philosophy which have split the Valley for some time. It calls for the establishment of a "child-centered" curriculum at Corte Madera School and a "subject matter-centered" approach at the Ormondale School.

Fundamentals would be stressed at Corte Madera, with special emphasis on integration of all subject matter into the reading programs. Homework would be minimized and pupils would remain with one home room teacher through the day.

At Ormondale, emphasis would be on linguistic-phonic reading and subject matter would be departmentalized when possible. Team teaching methods would be utilized.

Banta stressed that neither approach would present an extreme point of view, that the difference would be in emphasis. He proposed that youngsters living in the Corte Madera attendance area could be enrolled at Ormondale, and vice versa, if parents agreed to provide transportation.

Dr. Flocks said the new plan will give the board a good chance to study the differences in textbooks and materials used in education.

"Personally, I would like all of our schools to have the best possible methods and materials for learning," he remarked.

Regarding the bond election, a citizens committee was organized Tuesday to promote the issue and fully inform the public of the factors involved. Ted Carter will head the group.

Bridge Closing Is Announced

Construction of a $500,000 freeway bridge to carry Junipero Serra Freeway across Stanford University's two-mile-long linear accelerator is in the works for the 1963-64 fiscal year.

This was reported this week by State Senator Richard J. Dolwig of Atherton, who said it was part of a total of approximately $23,000,000 allocated for highway projects in the county during the period.

The sum is approximately double the amount allocated for the county during the 1962-63 fiscal period.

Youth Nabbed In Curfew Case

A 16-year-old boy who refused to leave a local drive-in after being ordered to do so was taken to Hillcrest on charges of curfew violation Saturday night, police report.

The youth was arrested at 10:55 p.m. by Inspector Joseph Barnes and Sergeant John Hacker, who said they'd previously ordered him to move on.

Menlo Park curfew law states that unaccompanied juveniles should be off the streets by 10 p.m.

'Condominium' Apartment Plan Studied

Menlo Park City council got its first look at the city's first proposed "condominium" living unit plan Tuesday night.

The proposed development would be situated at 200 Ravenswood Ave., on a full acre of property. Developer Roy Giorgi pointed out that the lot is zoned for duplexes and legally could accommodate 12 dwelling units.

Under "condominium" conditions, the individuals buying dwelling units could own them, but would share expenses of grounds upkeep.

Mayor William R. Lawson observed that there are complexities in the plan; tax responsibility and maintenance and upkeep standards are hard to define.

The council, however, agreed that the relatively low population density was a good thing; they referred it to the city's planning commission for further consideration.

According to Giorgi's plan:

1. There will be no more than eight residential units, in the form of individual houses;
2. Not more than 40 per cent of the one-acre site will be covered and at least 40 per cent of the site will be occupied by "landscaping, pools, walkways and open courtyard;
3. There will be a double garage for each dwelling unit.

Other highly restrictive conditions also were included.

Mayor Lawson, observing that he had seen similar plans founder, asked that the planning commission consider the proposal, and if it saw fit grant a use permit which would be terminated in one year, if no development starts before then.

FIREMEN CALLED

A defective furnace motor Sunday started to give off smoke at a home at 860 Partridge Ave., resulting in a call to firemen at 1:04 a.m. Actual damage was confined to the motor.

Seasonal Hazard:

Police Give Tips to Merchants On Shoplifting, Check Passing

Menlo Park's downtown merchants this week were warned against the seasonal hazards of shoplifters and check-passers, which appear to become more than usually active during the pre-Christmas season.

The warning came from Menlo Park Police Chief George Potter, who urged store owners to instruct temporary and part-time help, in addition to regular employees, on what to watch for.

And he also gave instruction on how a shop-owner or other private citizen can make a legal arrest, which makes successful prosecution of a miscreant easier.

Concerning possible shoplifters, the chief urged that merchandisers be especially watchful for persons carrying large shopping bags, wearing baggy clothing, or wandering aimlessly around a store.

Some shotlifters carry dummy packages with folding ends, into which they can stuff merchandise and others work in teams, so one can distract store employees while the other goes about his work.

Check-passers are on the increase, Chief Potter said. And although there is no fool-proof way of making sure a check is genuine, all employees should ask for identification of the person presenting it.

If accepting a check from a stranger, an employee should legibly write such data as telephone number and car license number, if it is presented as confirmation of the writer's name.

If a shoplifting operation is detected in a store, Chief Potter said, the owner or employee should follow the suspect outside the building before apprehending him. The intent to steal is then clearly shown.

Articles taken from suspects should be clearly marked, for later identification.

Merchants should follow up with the signing of formal complaints and by being ready to produce evidence and witnesses, to assure successful prosecution.

Illustrations Provided By MP Man

Illustrations for a new book, "San Francisco — Say It Isn't So" — were done by a Menlo Park resident, Jack Gerksenmeyer of 871 14th Ave.

It was Gerkensmeyer's job to provide a humorous cartoon for each of the 14 articles, written by San Francisco newspapermen and radio's Don Sherwood, all of whom write about the one thing they don't like about San Francisco.

The book is edited by Walt Daley, a sportswriter and, like Gerkensmeyer, on the staff of the News-Call Bulletin.

Among the many "gripers" are Count Marco, Monique, Herb Caen and Millie Robbins of the San Francisco Chronicle; George Murphy and Prescott Sullivan of the Examiner, and Fred Storm, Paul Speegle, Andy Curtin, Jack Rosenbaum, Jack McDonald, Roger Williams and Arthur Caylor of the News Call Bulletin.

The book is published by Nourse Publications of San Carlos.

Gerkensmeyer and his wife, Phyllis, are parents of four children, Kathy, 13, Johnny, 11, Tommy, 8, and Mark, 5.

Vapor Ignites In Atherton

East Palo Altans Protest Plan to Close Underpass

The closure of the Bayshore Freeway-Euclid Avenue pedestrian underpass by the State Division of Highways has brough about protests from a number of East Palo Altans.

They assert that the walkway was used frequently by shoppers who go to and from the shopping area along University Avenue, O'Connor Street and Manhattan Avenue.

Some of those who made the most use of the underpass were elderly people who found it much easier than walking across the University Avenue overpass to the shopping center, the protestors said.

The state closed the underpass when the Ravenswood City School District, which no longer uses it for moving students back and forth, asked the highway department to be let out of responsibility for maintenance.

This amounted to about $100 per month, Craig Snasdell, assistant superintendent for business services, said.

The district did not ask for the closure, he emphasized. The administration had agreed to provide for maintenance when the underpass was built.

But they found it hard to justify the cost now that all students who move from east to west or vice versa are being transported by bus.

Residents who want the state to reopen and maintain the underpass are directing their letters to R. D. Kinsey, assistant district engineer, California State Division of Highways, 150 Oak St., San Francisco 2.

Annual bicycle auction of the Atherton police department will be held Saturday, Dec. 1, at 10 a.m. at the police station, it was announced this week by Police Chief Leroy Hubbard.

There are other goodies to be disposed of too, Chief Hubbard said; most mysterious of them being a clothes bag, found on an Atherton street by patrolmen and furnished with women's clothes.

A total of 39 bicycles in various states of repair are to go on sale, he added, pointing out that the auction usually provides youngsters with a good opportunity to find "wheels" for themselves at a price they can afford.

Chief Hubabrd himself will act as the auctioneer at the sale.

$300 Damage Seen From Fire Here

An estimated $300 damage resulted at the Sidney Madden home, 1861 Los Robles Ave. Sunday, firemen said, when waste ignited in a bathroom trash container.

Firemen, called to the home at 2:24 p.m., said damage was confined to the wall, floor, a dressing table and clothing in the room.

They said Madden apparently had emptied an ash tray into the trash container a short time before and that a smouldering cigaret could have set off the blaze.

Woodside Scouts To Wash Cars For Hospital Aid

A special car wash will be held by Woodside Boy Scouts this Saturday to benefit crippled children at Shriner's Hospital in San Francisco.

Proceeds from the all-day affair will be used to purchase model plane and ship building kits for the hospital's Boy Scout Troop 112, according to Robert Schnier, leader of Woodside's Troop 159.

The troop's 17 boys will run the car wash from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m .on the parking lot in front of the Woodside Elementary School's multi-use building. The charge is $1.50.

Schnier said he hopes the car wash will be held annually as a troop benefit. The models will be presented to the hospital on Dec. 22.

The family dog apparently didn't feel warm enough the evening of Nov. 21.

So he pushed his straw-filled bed too close to the water heater in the garage where he was quartered, at the Roger Whitmire home at 1205 Hillview Drive.

Result? A call to firemen at 7:38 p.m., when the straw ignited.

Firemen said that damage resulting from Towser's experiment was minor.

'Tribalism' Seen as Threat To Tanganyikan Freedom

(Following is reprinted a story from the Stanford Daily, issue of Nov. 15, written by Miss Hilary Sims, daughof Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Sims of 105 Sunrise Drive, Woodside. Miss Sims is a senior majoring in history, and a candidate for graduation from Stanford next month. Ed.)

By HILARY SIMS

One of the salient problems of "uhuru" (freedom) in East Africa is tribalism. In Tanganyika alone have the decisive effects of tribalism been kept to a minimum.

In Uganda there is a sharp antagonism between the four agricultural, Bantu kingdoms (which are solidly unified around their kings) and the pastoral Nilotic peoples for whom tribal sentiments have been modified by a desire for unity as a nation state. To placate the autonomous desires of the kingdoms, Uganda, made independent last October 9, has been established as a semi-federal, semi-military state; the kingdoms do retain some powers which in other areas are administered by the central government.

In Kenya the destructive aspects of tribalism are at their worst. The principal antagonism stems from the distrust of the numerically superior, politically conscious Kikuyu from whose depths sprang the Mau Mau. The less-developed, smaller tribes fear that their welfare will be slighted for the better-educated, larger tribes.

At Makerere University College, which draws its students from all three territories, tribalism is exhibited in a modified microcosm. The college, by mixing members of different tribes in the halls, serves to remove the blind mistrust of one tribe for another.

Mistrust and antipathy though lessened still exist and are manifested in the tendency of members of one tribe to monopolize one table at meals and talk in their vernacular to the exclusion of others. The less sophisticated girls make it clear they would never marry outside their tribe, for to do so would be virtual exile.

Occasional slurs are made against people on the basis of a negative (to another tribe) tribal characteristic. The a-political Baganda disparage the intense nationalism of the Kikuyu.

Recognition of tribal differences often surmounts racial differences. One afternoon in Kenya a Kikuyu boy took me and an African girl out to visit his old high school. We got onto a bus and he looked at the other people in the bus and looked at the two of us and said "you know you are the only non-Kikuyu on the bus."

The Tanganyikan students were very sensitive about their tribal backgrounds. Since the ideology of Tanganyika is to emphasize unity and de-emphasize races and tribes, the students made a point of idenitfying themselves as Tanganiyikans without any tribal adjectives.

Around the campus were signs in tribal languages advertising meetings of the tribal clubs, organized to bring members together socially and to discuss, in their own language, problems at home.

The tribal clubs are giving way however to the more dynamic "national" discussion groups which concentrate on talking out problems (including tribal conflict) besetting their territories and arriving at some resolution. Sharp, but well thought out exchanges characterized these meetings, and the resolutions were often embodied in letters to national leaders in an attempt to add a significant voice to deliberations at that level. Many students upon graduation move right up the political ladder. Some were already the leaders of "Youth Wings' to political parties. It was through Makerere students that I got on the inside of political developments in their territories.

Students are well aware of the damaging effects of tribalism, and a discussion of its place in the university highlighted the school newspaper for a couple of weeks. When the local tribe, the Baganda, developed a strictly tribal party based on loyalty to their king, most other students dissociated themselves from "such provincialism."

Living at Makerere as a regular student gives one the unique opportunity to know students from various tribes well, go with them into their home districts, learn from them. What about their tribes they consider set them apart from their contemporaries; and to see, in this vertigo of change which is Africa, the constantly shifting interaction between their tribal heritages and the ideas of nationalism and modern development.

Football Season: Comment on the Aftermath

Football season, 1962, ended last week and already there are stories going the rounds about coaches who are going to lose their jobs because their teams didn't produce winning seasons.

This sort of talk has been going on, on the professional football and college football levels.

We're kind of sorry to see this type of talk crop up, for it indicates a return to the type of thinking of 30 years ago, during which period winning college football coaches got paid as much, sometimes, as the president of the college. The coaches, in turn, went on recruiting drives and, if memory serves, pressures were sometimes brought to bear on professors in other departments of a college to allow a good football player to pass his courses, whether he was personally capable of it or not.

Not more than a decade ago the old Pacific Coast League "purified" itself and these practices were abandoned.

But how can a coach stay idealistic if he's periodically informed, "alumni donors have indicated they'll attenuate their support of the alma mater if we don't win more games."

We'd hate to see that sort of thing intrude itself on high school level sports; we dislike seeing it on the college level.

On the pro level, of course, the idea is to make money for the owners and such practices presumably are reasonable there.

Local Government Faces Constant Compromise

How can local government maintain some sort of integrated organization, without having all those overlapping jurisdictions which seem to duplicate each other, and at the same time remain in close touch with the voting public and remain responsive thereto?

It's a question which is on the minds of most of our local government officials, at least part of the time.

During the current season the loudest discussion along these lines is going forward among those interested in the schools of the area; a few months ago, at the time of a sanitary district election here, the small specialized districts were criticized by one candidate in a local race.

There are all kinds of collateral questions which have to be answered:

In the case of the school districts, we feel, the discussion should turn on one consideration: What gets the best education for the greatest number of children.

There are all sorts of arguments put forth for large unified agencies, small, "intimate" district organizations, and just about any size agency in between, that you care to name.

In the case of the recent sanitary district elections, though, that "responsiveness of the voter" to the small district organization was mocked somewhat by a light turnout. People — the majority of them, it would seem — weren't really sufficiently concerned about who ran their sanitary district, to get out and vote.

The "responsiveness of the voter" can't really be entirely judged on this basis, though. Most of our smaller independent special districts are competently run by elected boards, the members of which have become expert in the management of some special agency — devoted to protection against fire, operation of sewers, operation of relatively small school enclaves and a host of other things including the control of mosquitos.

"Integrating" these functions under more powerful elected boards might not assure "better government" though it may assure greater public interest. Remember: These people have become experts, in many cases, in the operation of the type of special district which attracts their loyalties.

It's quite a problem.

Looked at from the theoretical level, it's difficult to guess where the best level of government exists.

But the problem stated at the outset continues to exist, and will demand renewed attention and review from time to time.

You Can Save by Aiding Control of Shoplifters

The police department has issued its regular annual warning to merchants: The pre-Yule shopping season, a time of happiness and festive activity for most of us, is also a time of activity for shoplifters, check-passers and other miscreants who work best when store clerks are busy and apt to be a little hasty in checking identifications and the like.

How the "Christmas spirit" gets warped into meaning "It's a time of giving — to me" escapes us. But there it is. There are those among us who feel that's the way it should be.

We don't envy such people. Substituting "Christmas shoplifting" for the more usual "Christmas shopping" is a transition we just can't make.

But we'd like to take occasion to point out that the "Christmas shoplifters" cost us all money. The merchant has to figure on a percentage of loss to such people, and add it into the overhead which all of us have to pay if a private business is to survive.

So maybe you can help.

If the non-paying "shoplifters" start performing in your midst, give a yell. You'll be saving yourself money.

County Comment:

Much Planning Ahead for County

By FLOYD F. McCUE
Editor and Publisher, Redwood City Star-Advertiser

San Mateo county, as everyone knows, is one of the fastest growing area in the fastest growing state in the country. Are we meeting the demands of the future by proper planning? What are the areas that need our attention now so that we can develop properly? These questions not only are before the officials of county and cities but should have the attention of every resident.

Passing the half-million mark in population is an important milestone for San Mateo county but it also brings its problems. The future growth is not expected to diminish; rather it may increase.

The first thought concerning planning naturally must turn to our hill sections. Will we be forced to flatten hills, tear out our beautiful trees, allow high-rise apartments and semi-commercial enterprises? Will all areas follow plans similar to those approved for the Westborough subdivision near Daly City? What provisions will subdivision developers have to meet to provide adequate roads, school sites, parks? How will the residents of those new (not to mention the present) areas get to and from their work?

Redwood City is already having its headaches over the problems of high-rise apartments in the lower hill areas. Protests have been bitter and loud.

The county also is asked to approve a development of between 2000 and 5000 high-rise apartment units west of Redwood City. Is this a pattern that is to be followed county-wide?

The high price of land — and it is continually going up — forces developers, so they say, to have multiple-development in order to attract buyers or renters.

We cannot believe that our hillsides should be cluttered with high-rise buildings of any kind. There is plenty of room within incorporated cities that is more suitable for such buildings and provides the residents with quicker access to the direct freeway routes. An apartment development representing many millions of dollars in cost and thus new tax revenue for all agencies, is hard to turn down. We hope both our city and county planning commissionions will think long and hard before approving such apartment construction.

Naturally, our streets and highways are of major importance at the moment. The state is planning widening of Bayshore Freeway from San Mateo south to Palo Alto and an all-new freeway skirting the bay's edge is on the drawing board but years away.

Junipero Serra Freeway has been started with completion probably six or more years away. El Camino Real widening ois going along slowly. Outside of a new freeway down the Coastside, this is about all we can hope for in state-federal speed highways.

What about the secondary roads? The county hopes to get voter approval of a $30 to $40 million bond issue in April to finance needed construction in tehis field. In Redwood City, we have one project that is scheduled to be included in the county-wide bond issue, and residents raised so much fuss when the planning commission wanted to set plan lines for the project it had to delay the discussions.

Is this to be the pattern county-wide? If so the road bond issue is in for more terrific bombardment despite the urgent need.

You just can't change the feeling of all residents: "The widening and improvements are needed but just don't pick my street; the one two miles north is better."

The question of where to pute all our potential new residents raises other questions. Will we have the jobs to support them and how can we finance the additional schools that will be needed?

True, the bay side — as well as the coast side — has plenty of zoned industrial lands ready for developers. These areas must be protected from home developments to permit proper expansion on the industrial-commercial side.

Industrial parks such as those in South San Francisco, Burlingame, San Carlos, Redwood City and Menlo Park are the backbone of our future soundness, both from an employee possibility and as a tax source.

The school problem, apparently, will be with us forever.

Will we be forced to rely on state and federal financing to accomplish the job? The school people think so, but apparently most of the residents hope not.

Regardless of where we think we get the cash, we pay the bill for the schools and all the other developments that must come if we are to meet the challenge of not only the present but the future.

Municipal Report:

Many Agencies Serve New Facilities

As residents of the area and Sunday drivers well know, developments on Stanford lands to the west and south of Menlo Park's residential areas are fast becoming "developed" in a way different than could have been anticipated only a few years ago.

Work on the university's linear accelerator is going ahead. Antennas seem to be sprouting on the hills also.

These installations will be used for exploring a variety of things from the structure of distant stars to the makeup of an atomic nucleus; Menlo Park might well become known as a fountainhead of scientific knowledge at both extremes.

Serving these facilities — providing the power and the other utilities to make them go — will be a major undertaking. And in some aspects, the huge scientific devices which are our new neighbors might be felt unattractive.

Already, in Portola Valley and other areas where the affect will be most noticeable, residents have formed a committee for the preservation of the appearance of the "green hills" which have heretofore formed a backdrop for the area.

It should surprise nobody that conspicuous among the names of members of this committee are members of Stanford University's teaching staff.

Though they may be critical of power lines lashing across the hills through Woodside and can think of all sorts of alternatives which might cost the university more money while preserving appearances, the spirit of academic freedom prevails and they're welcome to criticize.

The public utilities and public agencies, meanwhile, are hard put even to estimate the eventual level of services which all of Stanford's installations will require.

The city, for instance, currently is completing a huge reservoir designed to serve the linear accelerator as well as the Sharon Heights area.

The Menlo Park Sanitary District, too, has been involved in negotiations with the university over connection fees.

The huge linear accelerator site may or may not all require sewerage and for the past several years the university has contended that the district's connection fees are too high if the entire area is to be considered "connected."

Besides, the university has huge sewer mains of its own in the professional-administrative area near the Palo Alto-Stanford Hospital.

Although this is across the county line from the accelerator and hence in another jurisdiction, all sorts of legal angles might be worked to drain the accelerator's area from the Stanford side.

Readers will also recall that the army and the division of highways have interests in the developing area, too. There's to be a freeway built across Stanford's lands and the army corps of engineers is still in there, with its plans for a proposed "Ladera dam" for flood control, recreation and water storage.

Meanwhile, Stanford University engineers and other experts are hard at work figuring out more economical ways to ultilize the huge expanse of land.

They've already made themselves known as how they'd like to substitute some "check dams" on San Francisco Creek for the army's proposed installation, and they've made themselves known to the Sanitary District as well, regarding their feelings on the cost of connecting the local sewers.

Beyond this, one of the major quasi-public utilities which is apt to be involved in developments on Stanford's hills hasn't been heard of, yet.

That's the telephone company.

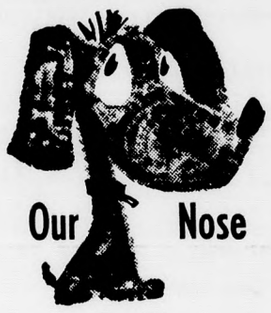

It has become the practice in scientific circles, we're told, to telephone an expert on the other side of the world, if necessary, rather than write a letter and wait for an answer.

Secretarial time is expensive and person-to-person contacts among scientists are apparently rewarding in the exchange of ideas.

One defense industry situated in the Sacramento area, we're told, a few years ago expanded its telephone switchboard to accommodate "an additional" 30,000 long distance calls a month. How many long distance calls a month it handled before that, isn't known.

The telephone company, however, has taken care to put its newest lines along Sand Hill Road underground, while building a new automatic switchboard building in Sharon Heights.

So no matter how extensive their installation in the area becomes, it proabably won't be greeted with cries of outrage.

TELLS US:

It looks as though the front entrance lighting problem for the new Community Activities building, now under construction in civic center, has been solved before it was known to exist.

Tucked away in the "storage yard" at civic center are a group of nice cast-iron electroliers in good enough shape to be put back into use.

There aren't enough of them to light a huge area, but there might be enough for this one application, it appears.

Like just about everything else in the storage yard, these were salvaged when removed in the course of street improvements years ago.

Hope springs eternal.

This is reaffirmed in the current issue of "California Highways and Public Works," official journal of the Division of Highways, which carries an article dealing with the design of "Kidproof Railings."

The workers of the Division have hopes, but things keep cropping up.

"A few years back, a safe railing was one which was high enough and strong enough so that if a person walking beside it stumbled or fell against it, it was high enough and strong enough to prevent his falling through or over.

"Now, a safe railing has become one which cannot be climbed, cannot be crawled through or on the outside of, one which has mesh small enough so that things cannot be thrown through or over onto the traffic below, yet it still must be open to provide visibility and ventilation.

"The only feasible solution thus far has been complete enclosure of the pedestrian area with wire mesh, with provision made at the ends so there can be no access to the outside of the cage. A 'cage' is just what is is . . ."

* * *

The Placerville "Mountain Democrat" comes up with another in that long series of jokes:

"What's this fly doing in my soup?" screamed the disgusted man in the restaurant.

The waitress came to his table, stood a minute looking into the bowl and observed, "Looks like a backstroke to me."

30 Years Ago:

City Got Welfare Relief

The files of the Menlo Park Recorder reveal that, 30 years ago this week, the following items, here reproduced exactly as first published, were news in the young community.

Allocation to Menlo Park of $4500 to provide relief employment was reported to the city council on Tuesday evening by Mayor W. H. Weeden. The allotment was made by the project committee from the $350,000 voted by the county Nov. 8 to provide work for the unemployed.

Six men will report for the first work on Monday, Dec. 5, he announced. The construction of storm sewers and drains, the grading of the creek bank along Creek Drive in Stanford Park and the digging of 1326 holes for trees along Menlo Park streets were among the local enterprises which won the approval of the projects committee.

Mayor Weeden pointed out, however, that the tree program might prove to be impracticable because the city would have to furnish the trees for planting.

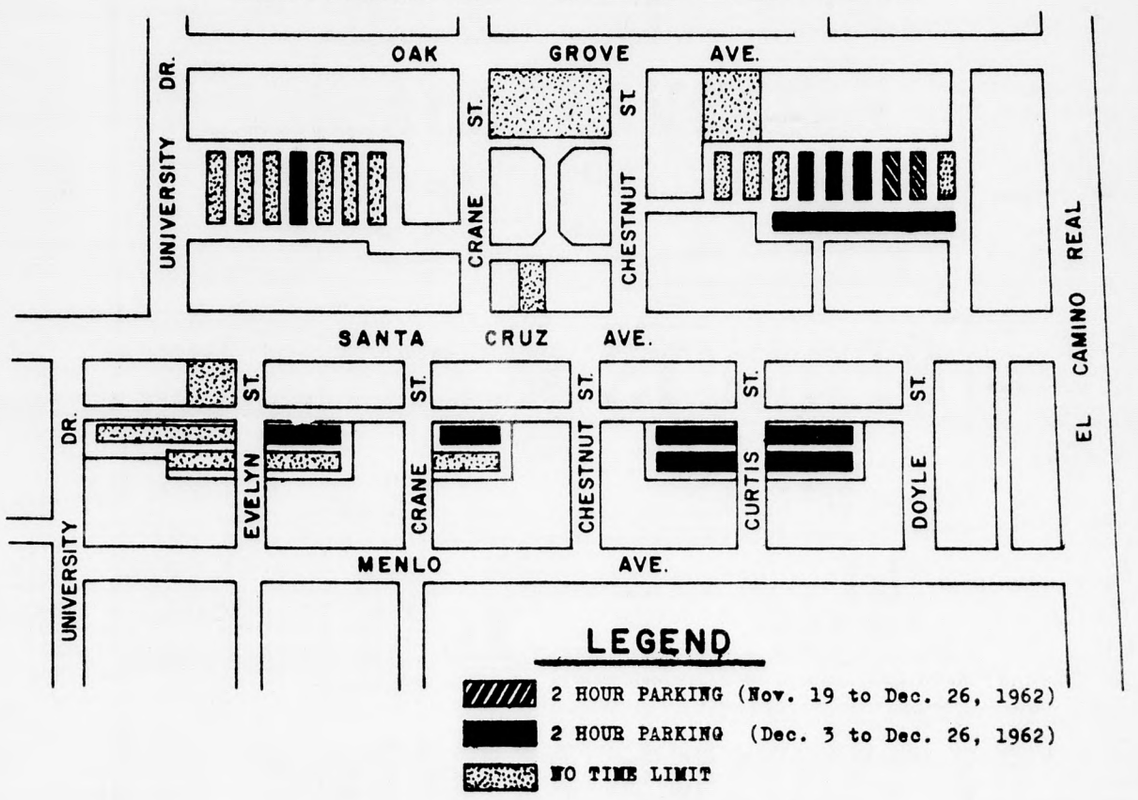

An appropriation of $250 to provide tools and materials for the first projects will be tackled was made by the council. It was expected that the laborers who will be delegated by the unemployment committee headquarters in San Mateo to the job in rotation, will be put to work first on the Creek Drive grading and the digging of drain sumps near the postoffice.

Five Eagle Scouts Get Badges At Troop 107 Honor Court

The largest class of Eagle Scout candidates ever in the long history of the troop last week received their badges, conferring on them the highest rank in Scouting, at a Court of Honor of Troop 107.

One of the Scouts to receive the badge was Bob Gautschi, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Gautschi and grandson of the late Floyd Beach, Scoutmaster of the troop from 1934 until his death last year.

All five of the boys, including one who has since removed to San Francisco, began their careers in Scouting under Beach.

The "largest class ever" extends back to the troop's founding in 1920, and its reactivation in 1924 under the leadership of the Recorder's founding editor-publisher, the late L. E. Harris.

The troop has been in continuous operation since that year.

Gautschi resides with his parents at 215 Hedge Road.

Dennis Flinn, son of Mrs. Jack Flinn of 119 Beaumont St. in San Francisco, is the Scout who chose to maintain active status in the Menlo Park troop, in spite of his removal from the area.

Other Scouts to achieve Eagle rank include Peter Hertzmann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hertzmann of 65 Politzer Drive; Richard Joy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Joy of 1625 Stanford Ave. and Herman Welz, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Welz of 1315 Elder St.

Troop 107 has for the past several years met at the Hillview school auditorium. Prior to that, it met at the old Central school auditorium.

Besides presenting the Eagle Scout awards, Scoutmaster Elgin Juri presented awards of rank to other Scouts on all levels. These included the following.

Life Scouts: David Smith, Ron Richert.

Star Scout: Robert Eldredge.

First Class Scouts: Gregory Brush, Richard Betchley, Elgin Juri, Jay Boothby.

Tenderfoot: Ricky Smith, David Sweet, John McCullough, Gordon Krengel, Tom Lodato, Jerry Crosby, Bill Gawthorpe, Rudy Schnagl, Andy Lee, David Schimmel, Jim Lewis, Paul Ott, Randy Heen, Brian Joyce.

3 Arrested For Burglary Of Parts, Tools

Three area young men including two 18-year-olds and one 16-year-old, were arrested Sunday after a quantity of auto parts and wrecking tools, apparently taken from a local auto wreckers, were found in their car.

The 18-year-olds, James Gassin of 498 Santa Monica Ave. in Menlo Park and Thomas Kisner of Palo Alto, were jailed on charges of grand theft. The 16-year-old was taken to the county juvenile home at Hillcrest.

Police said they first learned of the theft Sunday when Half Moon Bay police reported they'd found the trio in a car which also contained two used tires and wheels, and one cutting torch mechanism.

The youths, according to Half Moon Bay police, admitted taking the items from the Menlo Auto Wrecking yard at 3745 Haven Ave. in Menlo Park.

Contacted later in the day, yard operator Charles F. Touchatt said he'd missed the items but hadn't reported the theft because he didn't think it would do any good.

He identified the items, however, when they were returned here later.

The total loot was valued at an estimated $285, according to police.

Friends members Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Welsby of the Guild Bookstore have loaned copies of all books for a display.

Morning coffee will be served at 10 a.m., followed by the reviews at 10:30 a.m. The meeting is open to the public free of charge.

IWAKUNI, Japan (Special) —Marine Second Lieutenant Michael J. Callahan, son of Mrs. Gladys M. Callahan of 433 Concord Drive, Menlo Park, is serving at the Marine Corps Station, Iwakuni, Japan.

Among Other Things:

Atherton Town Council Studies Cost of Lindenwood Lights

Before things got a little too technical — and they were beginning to — before the matter was closed for the evening, representatives of the Lindenwood Improvement Association left the Atherton Town Council meeting Monday night with assurance from the council that the cost of installing a new lighting circuit for the Lindenwood subdivision would be looked into and reported on in the near future.

The street lights have had the bad habit of going out during and after bad weather in recent years because of the insulation of the underground lines rotting away. The problem was presented to the council several months ago. Since that time an estimated installation cost of new wiring and circuits has been set at about $40,000. The problem now is, where will the money come from?

The council asked city administrator Howard Boren and city engineer Ed Smith to check wth Pacific Gas and Electric Co. and try to come up with a reasonably definite figure for electroliers and installation. The Lindenwood street light circuit serves some 120 lots.

Several methods were discussed, none showing much advantage, without any definite indications of how much it would cost the Lindenwood residents in installation and maintenance assessments, if any, and for how long and at what rates.

Some figures should be forthcoming, Boren promised. The Association will meet sometime during the week before Christmas for a gathering of opinion and dissemination of information.

On other business, the council after home haggling decided to approve the planning commission's recommendations for a conditional use permit for Menlo School and College for a new service road running from the corporation yard to Valparaiso Avenue along the southwest boundary of the campus.

The councilmen were assured that no cross-campus traffic between Valparaiso and Alejandra would develop because the road would be chained at the corporation yard. Campus residence parking is nearby, which caused some concern about the traffic, but it will continue to enter and exit the campus at Alejandra, the council was told.

A request by Police Chief Leroy Hubbard for a yield right-of-way sign on Walsh Road at Reservoir Road was approved and an ordinance introduced on another Hubbard request, that for a 30-mile an hour speed limit on both Walsh and Reservoir Roads.

The town also approved signing a three-year lease to San Mateo County for the room in the town hall used as a branch of the county library. The move is a formality, since the county has used the room for that purpose since July, 1961.

Contenders Dominate All-SPAL Teams

BILL WELSH
. . . QB repeater

A light, fast team, making up by its wits what it lacks in size—that's this year's all-South Peninsula Athletic League football team announced today by the area sportswriters.

But the overall lack of size in the league this year, as reflected by the sportswriters' selections, wasn't the only thing different about this year's all-SPAL balloting, most of it effecting perennial champion Sequoia High.

The Cherokees' domination (four first team, one second team last year) was broken when only two, tailback Gary Beban and wingback David Armstrong, were named, both to the first team.

Sequoia coach Joe Marvin, four-time winner of the Coach of the Year honors, surrendered them this year to one of two his conquerors, Dick Storm of co-champion Carlmont. Storm's selection was in view of the best season a Carlmont varsity football team has ever had and its first-ever championship.

Sequoia's four-year stranglehold of Player of the Year accolades also was broken by quarterback Chuck Hunt, Carlmont's on-the-field mastermind and the SPAL's best passer percentagewise (47x87 for 709 yards, second in yardage to Beban's 793).

SHUT OUT AGAIN

But it was a black year for the three Menlo Park area schools, particularly Menlo-Atherton, who placed absolutely nobody. This was the second time in M-A's 11-year history that the Bears have failed to have anyone mentioned on a varsity all-league team and, curiously enough, the second time in a row. The other time was last spring's all-SPAL baseball squad. The Bears' dismal seventh-place finish and 1-5-1 record was all against them.

Woodside and Ravenswood came on strongly on the second team, despite their lacklustre seasons. One of them, Woodside quarterback Bill Welsh, repeated his second-team standing of last year and was the only repeater anywhere. Welsh is holder of the SPAL record for completions in one game, 16, set this year. He also finished third in total passing yardage behind Beban and Hunt, with 675 and 64x127. Welsh also led the league in passes being intercepted, 14.

Woodside end Harvey Shank, a junior, was named for his performance as one of the few bona fide pass-catching ends left in the league in the face of the slot-T formations that have become popular. Shank finished behind Carlmont's Rick Brown in pass receiving with 23 and was fourth in total yardage with 203.

Ravenswood's defensive line, capable of outstanding efforts at times, was recognized by the selections of middle guard Carl Lane and tackle Harry McMillen, both seniors. Ravenswood also had end Mel Easley, a junior, placed on the honorable mention list. Easley was fifth in pass receiving with 15 catches and sixth in yardage with 174.

STOLE THE SHOW

But when all is said and done it was the contenders who supplied the overwhelming majority of the talent to the all-SPAL teams. So great was the disparity between first and second divisions that the margin in number of selections was 21-6, the second division represented only by the five Woodside and Ravenswood players and fullback Bill Laich of San Carlos, who made it to tht first team for his derringdo.

Carlmont and Palo Alto, the co-champs, had nine and eight players respectively, on the teams to dominate heavily. Four of Paly's eight were first-team, four of Carlmont's were second team. Each had two honorable mentions. Cubberley, the other first-division squad, had one first and one second-team player.

There wasn't much difficulty coming up with the first-team linemen. With good backs in such abundance, they were the difficult ones to choose, while outstanding linemen tended to become rather conspicuous.

Paly's 216-pound tackle Laurie Capitelli, 202-pound center Hank Wilmer and Cubberley's 165-pound guard Bruce Milner were unanimous choices. Capitelli and Wilmer bulwarked a stingy Viking line that became the league's most feared, while Milner was the quickest of a crop of small but very fast Cubberley linemen who bounced but couldn't be shaken off.

Carlmont's Kay Bell, a 190-pounder, got the other tackle spot on first ballot, as did Paly's Carl Heaney at the other guard.

The backfield wasn't so easy. Beban, holder of new SPAL passing, scoring and total offense records and only a junior, was disposed of quickly by acclaim, as was Hunt at QB. Paly's fullback Dick Beahrs, a gem on both offense and defense, was named on the first ballot over a flock of good candidates.

The writers went to the third ballot before Laich finally was named over Cubberley's Fred Morse, the SPAL's rushing leader (539 yards in 104 carries for a 6.1 average) by virtue of his value to the sad-sack San Carlos 11. His hard running behind a less effective line than most opponents still put him fourth in rushing with 557 yards in 101 carries for a 5.5 average.

Beban's records include the 793 yards mentioned above in passing yardage, his 59 points scored (nine touchdowns, five conversion points) and total offense (793 yards passing, 625 yards rushing). Beban was third in rushing alone behind Morse and Carlmont's Andy Sears (631 yards).

WHAT TO DO?

Even rougher, and not calculated as a final solution, was the placing of single-wing wingbacks and T-formation slotbacks in the category as ends, making them eligible for all-league honors as ends.

This resulted in Carlmont's Brown, a slotback, and Sequoia's Armstrong, a wingback, being named ends on the first ballot. The feeling was that since they're used primarily as pass-catchers, they should be selected by duties rather than by stereotyped position.

Brown, in fact, was far and away the SPAL's leading pass receiver with 28 grabs for 517 yards, an 18.5 per catch average. Armstrong was second in yardage with 341 in 13 catches for a 26.2 average, that also the best by far. What else was there to do?

SECOND TEAM

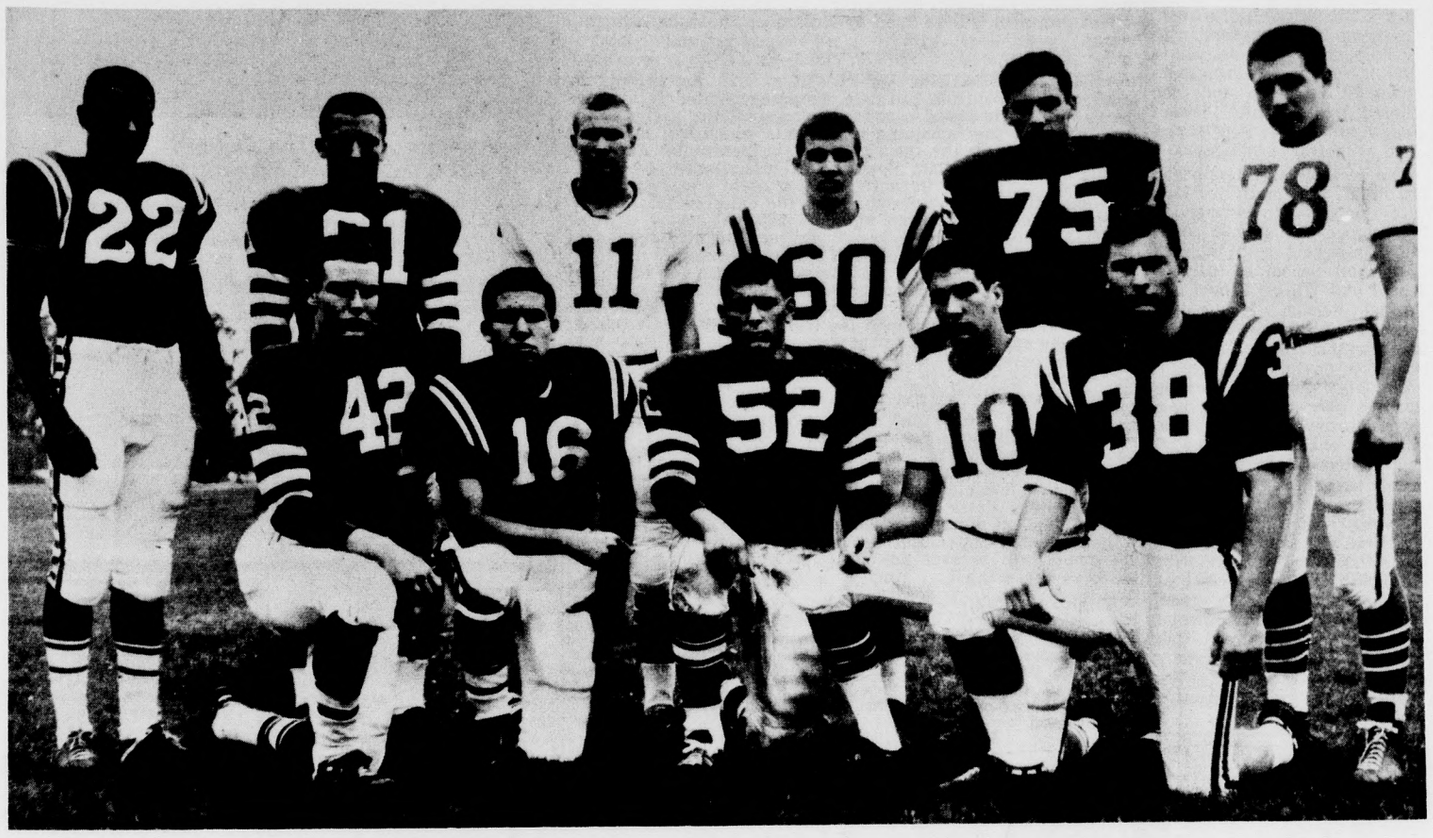

Carlmont's powerful offensive unit kept itself in the act in the second-team choices, which included guard Jim Wright, end Greg McHuron, fullback John Watts and halfback Sears. Watts was sixth in total rushing with 496 yards and a 5.8 average and tied for second with Beahrs in scoring with seven TDs for 42 points.

Sears finished second in rushing behind Morse with 631 yards in 100 carries for a 6.3 average, that is the league's tops, and fourth in total offense with 640 yards.

Palo Alto got tackle Keith Hart, another of the rough ones, and end Marty Brill, a junior and a tiger on defense, on the second team to round out that group.

Honorable mention besides Easley were Paly guard Bob Brakesman and halfback Tim Barnes and Carlmont guard Barry Venditti and center Jerry Golins.

Inexperienced Bears Await Cage Opening

Having lost all his starters from last year's near-championship team and a good many top reserves to boot, Menlo-Atherton High basketball mentor Bill Loftus nevertheless is surveying a wreck that he thinks can be shaped into something that may well keep up the traditions of winning M-A basketball.

With all-SPALer Eddie Phillips gone, along with Dave Olerich, Charley Wade, John Black, Dave Wagner and Bill Wright, among others, one might assume that Bearville's cage prospects have gone Pfffftt. Not so, thinks Loftus while eyeing the circled Dec. 7 at the top of the schedule, which says the Bears go to Capuchino High in San Bruno for a face-off with the Mustangs. That's next Friday.

He did get four of the old crowd back, namely 6-5 center Gary Klein, guard Dick Burrill and forwards Claibon Mallet (6-3) and Bevan Odenweller, none of whom saw too much action. Klein and Burrill are juniors, the others seniors.

With practice just underway over the past couple of weeks it's a little early to tell who the balls of fire are going to be among the new boys, but some have shown indications that they're improving all the time.

From last year's B team, which found itself in midseason to become a winner there comes 6-3 forward Mark Maloney who, with 20 or 30 pounds of added weight has become a much improved ballplayer; guard John Hofferd, who has drawn notice and guard Rod Pommes, hobbled by an ankle injury at the moment.

A transfer student from Madrid, Spain, who can jump and shoot and has plenty of speed has been a pleasant surprise. He's Mani Gonzales, who brought with him some experience from his home. He's 6-2 and probably slated for a forward spot.

Jerry Bowers, another junior transfer, this time from Sequoia High, could be a good bet for guard too. Bowers played B ball at Sequoia last year, starting on a club that beat the Bear Bs twice.

Senior guard Cliff Gamble and senior forward Kris Segerstrom are making their debuts as basketball aspirants, having never played organized ball before. Gamble, however, did well in the summer league and shows promise.

Season Kickoff:

Trojans Meet Castlemont

Ravenswood High varsity cagers plan to do their level best to live up to their advance billing as one of the Bay Area's top prep teams when they travel to Oakland Friday night to meet Castlemont High in the 1962-63 season opener.

The Ravenswood B-Castlemont junior varsity game will start things off at 7 p.m.

Castlemont will put a big starting lineup on the court but their defense in most recent outings leaves something to be desired. However, the Knights have played more games this season and this may be a factor.

Aching for action is the starting Trojan five — forwards Nate Branch (6-4) and Melvin Easley (6-0), center Art Crum (6-3) and guards Milky Johnson (5-9) and Len Wiley (5-10). Guard Jimmy Fields (5-11) and forwards Ray Horn (6-1), Ron Ban (6-1) and John Perez (6-1) are also ready to appear.

The starters for Castlemont: John Howze (6-2) and Isaac Bingham (6-4), forwards; Jerry Wilson (6-3), center; Ken Grant (6-0) and Emery Franklin (6-0), guards.

The Ravenswood B starters, according to coach Tom Crane, will be Jeff Mulford (5-11) and Jim Bradley (5-8), forwards; Art Edge (6-0), center; and Varrie Booker (5-6) and Bobby Washington (5-5), guards.

In the varsity contest, the ability of Trojan defenders to put the clamps on Castlemont rebounding and offensive playmaking may be the key to this first game of the RHS season.

Branch, an all-SPALer at 6-3 last year, has grown another inch and now weighs 190 pounds. And he'll be that much tougher on the boards. Nate has always been an effective shooter, and now has some beef to go with his height.

In practice, Johnson has shown that he's lost none of his ability to steal the ball and drive for layups. The 5-9 cager can even "stuff" the ball although he's not likely to try it during a game.

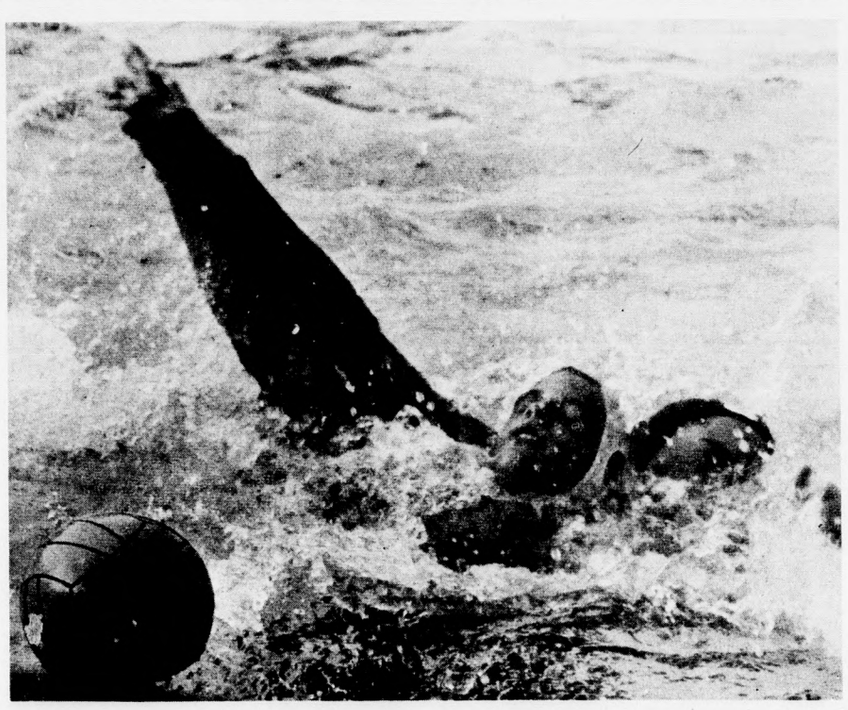

Crum remains a solid ballplayer at center. Easley, a newcomer to the starting lineup, has smoothed away some of the rough edges he displayed as a freshman player last season. Wiley, up from the Bs, has a fine jump shot.

Getting to Castlemont High is complicated, but here are the directions: Take the Eastshore Freeway north to the 98th Street turnoff. Head east on 98th to Bancroft and turn left. Drive down Bancroft to 90th Street and turn right, proceed to Hillside Avenue, and turn left. Castlemont is located off Hillside Avenue.

B Cagers Drill For Debuts, Too

The local prep class B basketball teams have hit the hardwoods for workouts too, with Menlo-Atherton High coach Lee Megginson calling his group "the best I've ever had" in his three years at M-A and new Woodside High coach Frank Verducci delaying comment until he has his squad cut down and is acquainted with his boys.

Megginson's M-A bunch starts play next Friday, Dec. 7, at Capuchino High. Verducci, who took over for Marv Branstrom this year, has his opening set for Tuesday, Dec. 11, against Mills.

TAKEN OUT . . .

Oaks Cagers Have Good Prospects

Menlo College basketball skipper Jack Rowley is a reasonably contented man this week, having put a team together that has good overall backboard strength, is big and strong and has shown an evenly-balanced scoring punch.

Saturday's season-opening game with Chabot College will test Rowley's practice session prognoses. It'll be at 8 p.m., probably at Tennyson High School in Hayward, although Rowley wasn't sure Tuesday. Chabot is a new school and has no gym of its own yet. Definitely settled is next Tuesday's home date with College of Marin, starting at 8 p.m. in the Menlo gym.

Although not very deep in reserves, Rowley may be able to carry the fight to the foes with his top seven. All that rebounding strength, however, is offset by a shortage of capable guards, so Rowley this year is using a high-low tandem post offense. This means in effect two centers and only one guard, with the forwards floating between the inside and outside.

The Oaks have the height to do it. Dick Hallett (6-6) and Bob Nichols (6-5) are slated to handle the double post, with Lance Lund (6-4) and Bob Foskett (6-4) at the wings and 5-8 George Bellows out there by himself at guard.

Forward George Stillman is the only sophomore and only veteran on the club, which speaks for its inexperience. Guard Bob Mee may or may not be around. Mee is another veteran and a starter, but is having scholastic problems. Guards Mike Heren and Bill Koskoff and 6-5 center Bob King round out the rest of the troops.

Nichols appears at the moment to be the major offensive threat of the Oaks. A good jump shot and ability to get inside have Rowley tabbing him as the Oaks' potential top season scorer. He, along with Hallett, are rated as the best of the rebounders too. Nichols, Lund and Foskett were all-leaguers in high school, Lund at George Washington High in San Francisco.

Injuries and dropouts raised havoc with the squad last year, with new faces popping up all the time as replacements. But despite it all the Oaks were 16-12 for the season and 7-7 and tied for fifth in the CCJC standings.

Best Turnout Yet:

Coach Drills 'Em at Woodside

A turnout of 49 prospective basketball players is keeping Woodside High coach Bill Guttormsen busy this week, still cutting down to playing size although Guttormsen was very pleased about the number, which was "our largest yet" in the school's four years of varsity ball.

One of Guttormsen's chief problems right now seems to be converting some of his good all-around athletes into basketball players once again. His two returning starters from last season, 6-5 center Bruce Steckel and guard Bill Welsh, still are playing water polo and football, respectively.

That applies also to 6-4 end-turned-forward Harvey Shank, who joined forwards Ted Fischer, and Bob Waites in the group of five veterans back from last year's team which was 8-11 and placed fifth in the SPAL.

Fischer and Waites are 6-2, so the Wildcats are fixed pretty well for height up front. They're not doing badly for guards who can handle the ball, either. Up from the B team are Steve Clark, Mac Hindman, Gary Ott and Chuck Jensen, along with center Dave Roots, now 6-2.

Also working for spots are 6-4 soph forward Bob Fitzwilson, up from the junior varsity; transfer Larry Emerick, a 6-1 forward; 6-4 junior center Bob Kelly, the best jumper on the squad but green; and 6-2 senior forward Bob Watson. The latter two are making their first attempts at varsity basketball, with Watson having just completed the football wars.

The Wildcats open their season next Thursday, Dec. 6, in the annual James Lick Tournament in San Jose.

CO-CHAMPS . . .
. . . of this year's Recorder Pigskin Panel with identical .720 percentages and 36-14 won-lost marks are Saturday custodian Woody Carlton (left) and circulation manager Ken Curtis, shown here celebrating with a drink from the Panel perpetual trophy. Carlton and Curtis staged a whirlwind finish on the last Panel two weeks ago with six-for-six sweeps, overtaking the sports editor, who was 4-2 and lost a one-game lead. The sports editor was second with an even .700 per cent (35-15).

A Pleasant Change of Pace?

Acorns See Bright Future for Up and Coming Cage Quintet

There's a brighter outlook for Menlo School athletic hopes these days, with the tall, experienced Acorn basketball team being looked to to reverse the horrible fate suffered by the footballers, who won only one game this fall.

Basketball coach Reynolds Crutchfield, entering his second campaign at the wheel, is looking for better things, too, with three prospects 6-4 or over and five returning lettermen.

Of course, it wouldn't take much to improve on last year's record — seven won, 11 lost, four wins and 10 losses in Bay Counties Athletic League competition.

The Acorns make their fist attempt at improving on all this tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 against Wilcox High down in Santa Clara, with the junior varsity game to follow. Next Tuesday the Acorns will be at home against Pescadero High, starting at 3:15 p.m.

Senior forwards Tom Fulton and Roy Pitt, senior guard Dolph Hill, sophomore guard Tim Pickering and senior guard Henry Lasker are back from last year, with all but Lasker doing long stretches as starters and Lasker showing considerable promise. Fulton was the top Menlo scorer. Also expected in January is 6-3 center Bob Hedley, another veteran but who still is recovering from a football injury.

Crutchfield got a lot of height in some new boys, although their degree of readiness hasn't been determined yet. A transfer from Menlo-Atherton High, Doug Perry is a 6-4 center or forward and is a junior.

First-string class B center at Palo Alto High last year, 6-4 sophomore Bill Closs has turned up at Menlo. Six-5 junior center Gil Gaylord is the biggest of the Acorns, but not too well coordinated yet.

Up from last year's junior varsity are senior guard Steve King and senior center Tom Leep, who may move to guard. First-timers on the squad are senior forward Alex Johnston and soph forward Bob Miller.

Coach Bob Jones' junior varsity, unlike its varsity cousins, isn't blessed with too much size and has many, many new faces, although they've shown up pretty well in practice. Looking best so far has been 6-2 freshman center John Thomas.

Football Dies Hard With Playground Tourney Coming

Once again the annual crush of post-season football tournament games will pre-empt most normal activities at Menlo Park Recreation Department playgrounds this weekend, with championships to be decided in fifth through eighth grades among all the playgrounds who entered teams—which doesn't include all the rec dept.-supervised schoolyards and parks.

The football nuttiness began last night, as a matter of fact, with the sixth grades playing two games. Tomorrow night the fifth grades go at it, with Oak Knoll School at Hillview School and Willow School and Encinal School. Fremont School got a bye and will meet the lowest-scoring winner of tomorrow next Friday, Dec. 7.

The high-scoring winner tomorrow gets into the finals next Saturday at Nealon Park, when the championships of all four grades will be played.

The seventh and eighth grades meet Saturday at Nealon, with the seventh grade action first. La Entrada School meets Oak Knoll at 9 a.m. and Hillview takes on Encinal at 10. Then it's the eighth grade, with Hillview against Encinal at 11 and La Entrada vs. Oak Knoll at noon. The winners will meet next Saturday, for the flags of their respective grades.

Had a Good Season:

Demeter Leads Menlo Lions Grid Statistics

Veteran halfback Randy Demeter, as expected, led the Menlo Park Blueshirts of the Sequoia Lions Football League in both rushing and scoring this season, according to statistics released this week by coach Wayne Bell.

Demeter carried the ball 73 times and picked up 397 yards for a five-plus average. Also slightly over five per carry was rushing runnerup halfback Bob Young, with 326 yards in 65 carries.

Demeter and Young each scored six of Menlo's touchdowns, but Demeter also ran in two conversion points to edge Young in total points scored, 38-36. Halfback Nick Vlasoff was third in both departments with 90 yards in 34 rushing carries and 22 points scored.

Passing-wise, quarterback Bill McMonigle led the way with 20 completions in 47 pass attempts, for 293 yards. Dave Wotila, the Lions "find" at signal-caller in late season, was coming up fast with 15-for-30 at 251 yards, an even .500 percentage.

Mike Beall was the top Menlo pass receiver, with 11 grabs for 145 yards. Al Martinez got longer yardage with his, getting eight for 143 yards. Young was next in yardage with 137 with eight catches.

The Blueshirts lost out on an SFL title tie playoff last week by losing to champion Redwood City 6-0 at Woodside High, thus putting their final season record at 6-2-1 and league mark at 2-2-1.

The Menlo Parkers scored 133 points for the season while allowing their opponents 71. They won two and lost two by shutouts.

Redwood City wrapped up its second straight SFL championship last week by beating the Blueshirts, results of which were too late for last week's Recorder.

The winners went 70 yards in nine plays for the game's only touchdown early in the third quarter. Tom Owell went 25 yards for the big gainer, with Tom Peadon carrying over from the seven on an off-tackle slant.

Menlo had two potential scoring runs cut down by last-second tacklers, one on Martinez gaining 30 on a pass and nearly getting away and Young taking a screen pass from Wotila for 35 before getting shoestring tackled.

The Blueshirt offense wasn't clicking too well against the aggressive Redwood City defense, anchored by Mike Chocco. They picked up only 41 yards rushing but their rushing total was cut to 13 because Wotila was thrown for 28 loss trying to pass. Wotila was Menlo's main threat, with four-for-12 passing for 95 yards, making 108 yards total offense for the locals.

Menlo Players Guild Holds Last Tryouts for Original Drama

Want to be able to say that you were in an original stage production? Here's your chance. The last two nights of tryouts for "People Need People" will be held by the Menlo Players Guild tonight and tomorrow night at Burgess Theater in Menlo Park Civic Center, starting at 8.

There are speaking parts for 15 men and three women, with a wide variety of characterizations among the doctors, medical officers, nurses and patients who comprise the cast. Ages range from 18 to 50.

This is a gripping drama based on the true experiences of Dr. Harry Wilmer of Palo Alto in his pioneering work with open-ward therapy for mentally disturbed patients.

The story originally was dramatized last January as an hour-long "Alcoa Presents" television program starring Lee Marvin. In May it was produced by the inmates of San Quentin Prison. Now rewritten as a full three-act play, "People Need People" will be presented for the first time to the theater-going public in a four-weekend run beginning Feb. 8.

For a Sunday Afternoon:

Children's Theater's 'Pinocchio' Makes Big Hit with Children

The best way to get children to enjoy a stage play is to put them right into the middle of it, as the Comedia Repertory Company Children's Theater is doing Sundays with it latest production of "Pinocchio" at the Comedia Theater in Menlo Park.

Stromboli chases Pinocchio and other puppets all through the aisles and the "boys" on Pleasure Island pass out balloons among the audience.

It all helps the enjoyment of the well-loved children's tale. Director King Hall has adapted it and has come up with something completely new. Not overly long but exceedingly entertaining to the youngsters and their parents.

But those not familiar with stagecraft will be amazed at the effect that two dancers doing pantomime and carrying props can have in creating an effect. Celia Richards' choreography did just this, particularly in the puppet show and ocean-bottom scenes.

Hal Dillehunt was starchy enough to be the wooden Pinocchio, with a flair more for dancing that for singing, both of which he did much of. John Allan was exceptionally gooey and convincing as the larcenous Red Fox and later as a lackadaisical Lampwick, Pinocchio's school chum who takes him to Pleasure Island. Emily Newbury was his sidekick, the Black Cat.

Bill Pendergrast also doubled in roles, first as the toymaker Gepetto, then as Stromboli and again as Gepetto. His costuming was the best of the lot. Marjorie Tinkham as the Blue Fairy appeared that she would be a very efficient secretary, coming off a little too crisply for a kindly apparition.

Leslie Stratee and Elaine Todd, the two dancers, are pretty, talented and were perfect living backdrops.

This was the first Children's Theater production with an all-adult cast. Its rapid pace and more coordinated stage actions make it a more plausible hour or so of entertainment, with fewer obvious mistakes that children are prone to make.

"Pinocchio" will be running through February nearly every Sunday afternoon at 2:30 at the Comedia Theater, 1300 El Camino Real.

Winter Plants with Much Appeal--Heather

If you're looking for a bright spot for your winter garden, you'll find it in the erica family. One or another of these South African heaths, or heathers, as most people call them, will give you color from December until at least the month of May.

The brightest and one of the earliest found in California is what growers call "Scotch Heather." This is grown as a commercial crop here in California and shipped to eastern markets which is about as close as it has ever been to Scotland. There's no denying its appeal, however.

There are variations of the Scotch heather, but the most widely found is an improved form called pink Scotch heather. It is a handsome shrub, four to six feet high at maturity, with needle-like leaves and masses of urn-shaped pink flowers. These flowers are the more striking for their black-tipped anthers, a feature which has also given them a second common name of black eyed heath (often called "Christmas heather").

Pink Scotch heather (or black eyed heath) shows color in southern California as early as October and is in full bloom before Christmas all over the state. It keeps up a show of color until February, then gives way to other members of the family. Another form of this shrub, the red Scotch heather also is available, very similar both in bloom season and in looks—other than the flower color.

Other heaths of note include two low-growing varieties—snow queen, which blooms in December with white flowers and dark brown anthers, and ruby glow, a red flowered heath, blooming in spring, usually in May. There is also the Darley heather, a spreading shrub of some two feet high and twice as wide, producing purplish bell-shaped blooms from December until April or May. Several others are available, though not widely grown.

The heather family is not particularly demanding, but an acid soil is preferred. You can assure this by using peat moss in the planting hole and/or by spreading a handful of soil sulphur around the shrubs each year in the fall. Drainage is an all-important factor, since boggy soil will finish the ericas in a hurry. Annual pruning after bloom will keep these shrubs compact and healthy.

The pink Scotch heather has wide use in the garden, both as an accent shrub for winter borders and as a covering for problem banks in sun or semi-shade. They also can be grown in tubs, or even in pots and pruned drastically. They will provide you with a spot of color indoors, if you buy them now and plant them out only after the bloom has faded.

Snow queen and ruby glow ericas both are low-growing and excellent for use in the rock garden or in pockets on a rocky hillside. They do not object to sun and need only a modicum of water to keep them happy.

In addition to the erica family, there are two other species of shrub which commonly go by the name of heather. One of these, the calluna family, is the true heather of Scotland and seems less widely adapted to California conditions than the ericas, which come either from South Africa, as noted, or from the Mediterranean area.

Varieties of Calluna are low-growing shrubs, suitable for the rock garden and slopes and demanding only a peaty soil with a bit of water to be perfectly happy. Their bloom is white or pink, occasionally crimson, and will appeal to those of Scots ancestry, who idolize the "fair heather" of their motherland. Look for the flowers in summer.

The other heather botanically is called daboecia and commonly called Irish heath. Like other heathers it is an evergreen, but the foliage is less refined, being broader of leaf than the needle-like foliage of ericas and calluna. Bloom season of the Irish heath is early summer until late fall, insuring that the gardener can have color from "heathers" throughout the year.

Pacific Ballet To Perform Here for Yule

San Francisco's outstanding new ballet company, the Pacific Ballet, will give four performances at the Comedia Theater in Menlo Park during the Christmas season.

Pacific Ballet will present Act II of "The Nutcracker," The Snow Flake Pas de deux, and The Owl and the Pussycat. The four performances will be given Dec. 22 and 23 at 11 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Alan Howard, director of the company, is a former premier danseur of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo. He took over the management of the San Francisco Academy of Ballet a few years ago, and from this school created the Pacific Ballet.

The Pacific Ballet made its debut at the Veterans' Memorial Auditorium in San Francisco in 1961 and was received with overwhelming critical acclaim and audience approval. The presentation played to sold out houses and was extended to meet the audience demand.

Comedia is sponsoring the company in its performances locally and intends to make this a regular annual event when Comedia moves to its new theater at Town and Country Village in Palo Alto.

Comedia currently is located at 1300 El Camino Real in Menlo Park Further information about this program may be obtained by calling DA 6-6560 from 2-5 and 7-9 p.m. daily.

Band Takes Winter Signups

Peninsula Community Band has a number of openings for experienced musicians who play band instruments, bandmaster Nathan Chasin has announced.

Fall quarter practices have ended and Monday rehearsals will resume for the band in January. However, applications are being accepted now in preparation for the winter session, Chasin said.

An alto sax, four B flat clarinets and two flute players are needed in the woodwind section of the band. Two trumpet players are needed in the band's brass section.

Musicians who are interested in concert band playing and can attend most Monday practices beginning in January may apply to band manager Robert L. Holland, DA 6-5628, evenings.

Professional, military or college experience in symphonic band or orchestra playing is preferred since the band is an advanced group. Classical, musical comedy, march music, etc., is sight-read and interpreted by the band. Men and women residents of the Peninsula are eligible to join the band.

DWARF CITRUS

Many dwarf citrus trees are bearing their colorful crops this month. If you visit a nurseryman's show yard, you will notice especially some of the navel oranges — Washington, and Robertson Navel Oranges — as well as Mandarins, Meyer Lemons and Rangpur Limes.

Ward, Fraser Pace M-A Frosh Gridiron Offense

Fullback Sandy Ward and halfback Jay Fraser were the leading scorers and ground-gainers for the Menlo-Atherton High freshman football team this fall, coach Frank Bettencourt has announced.

The Bear Cubs won two and tied one. They beat Sequoia 18-13 and Carlmont 26-6 and tied Woodside 0-0.

Ward scored five of the Cub touchdowns. Fraser was next in scoring with two TDs and two conversoion runs. Fraser led in yardage with about 200, with Ward gathering around 150.

Defensively, Bettencourt singled out middle guard Mark Schweizer, tackle Dan Fuller, Ward (tackle on defense) and linebacker Ed Dobbs for outstanding work.

M-A Bears Blow NorCal Water Polo Title to Awalt

Unable to keep coming back when everything seemed to be going against them, the Menlo-Atherton High varsity water polo'ists are Northern Californias' second best team this week, losing an 11-10 heartbreaker to fired-up Awalt High group from Mountain View in the fourth annual NorCal finals at Stanford's Encina Pool Saturday.

It definitely wasn't the best game coach Bob Gaughran's M-A Bears have played this season while going undefeated in 13 previous outings. The loss also ended strings of 17 matches going back to last season and 20 against high school opposition.

The Spartans of coach Art Lambert, beaten only once in 12 matches this year and that by the San Jose State Frosh, trailed once in the NorCal final and several times threatened to make it a no-contest. This is the new Awalt's first senior class year.

The biggest Spartan lead was an 11-7 bulge they opened up in the third quarter, but for the large, screaming crowd the most exciting part was yet to come.

Two-time all-SPALer Greg Buckingham brought the Bears most of the way back with two goals, one late in the third period and another early in the fourth on a pass directly in front of the cage and a short slap shot. SPAL Player of the Year Jim MacKenzie just barely hit the cage midway through the fourth for the Bears' last successful shot.

Awalt scoring leader Greg Nielsen was called for fouling in the games' last seconds as the Bears were maneuvering desperately. But nobody could hear the referee's whistle because of the crowd noise and in the meantime M-A's Steve Hansen hit a short shot for what looked like the tie goal and a sure overtime.

But no go. The timekeeper hadn't heard the whistle either, so the clock was put back at five seconds, the goal disallowed and play started two yards from the Awalt goal. Nielsen intercepted the setup pass from Bob Burnett to Buckingham and held it until time ran out.

Nielsen, the game's top scorer with six, had put the Spartans ahead to stay in the second period with a pair of quick goals that broke a 5-5 tie. It was 8-6 at the half. Nielsen had scored four in the second quarter.

MacKenzie, the SPAL's leading scorer this season, was held to lead the Bear scorers, with ly-efficient Awalt defenders Barry Weitzenberg and Don Buters. Buckingham got four to leadt the Bear scorers, with Dick Roth having three. Sheldon Ellsworth also got three for the Spartans.

It was a bad day for M-A goalie Al Arcady, with wildly gyrating balls flying just out of his reach all day. Goalie Phil Foley, named the tourney's Outstanding Player afterward, made 17 saves. Arcady could make only three.

The Bears had a much better time of it Saturday morning in the simifinals, clubbing Santa Clara 17-8. MacKenzie got eight goals in that one, with Buckingham having four here also.

Awalt beat Los Altos 5-2 to gain the finals. Los Altos beat Palo Alto 6-2 and Santa Clara downed Washington of Fremont 12-2 in Friday's semis.

Los Altos took third place in the afternoon finals by thumping Santa Clara 10-2.

M-A had been NorCal champ in 1959 and 1961, finishing behind Los Altos in 1960.

ALL-TOURNEY TEAM

Awalt led the all-tourney top ten with four places, with Los Altos landing three, M-A two and Santa Clara one.

Buckingham and Mac Kenzie were the Bears named. Besides, Foley, the champion Spartans placed Nielsen, Ellsworth and Weitzenberg. Los Altans were Don Moore, Rich Doyle and Mike Morck, while Dean Bisterfeldt represented Santa Clara.

Bargain Box Success Story Causes Move

All auxiliaries of the Children's Health Council of the Mid-Peninsula are centering their efforts on the move and expansion of the Bargain Box, the resell-it shop, located at 2811 Middlefield Road, Palo Alto.

Now in its seventh year of operation, the Bargain Box has been netting over $15,000 per year for the past few years; the need for expansion became obvious. Originally founded by Charter Auxiliary, the shop will now be staffed and operated by four senior auxiliaries—Esther Clark, Country Hills and Duveneck, as well as Charter.

Mrs. Al Linder, one of Charter's first presidents, heads the steering committee for the move, assisted by Mrs. William Alhouse, Mrs. Harry B. Perrin, Mrs. Conrad Jarvis, Mrs. Willard Johnston, Mrs. Glen B. Evans, Mrs. Dalton Bishop, Mrs. Willard Sheldon, Mrs. John Banks, Mrs. Richard Borda and Mrs. Robert W. Wallace.

Moving day is Dec. 1 from the old location to a spanking newly-painted and decorated building at 318 Cambridge Ave. All activity has been concentrated the past two months on site selection and improving operations. Mrs. Conrad Jarvis, Charter member, will be the full-time manager. The new site has over 3000 square feet of space with a convenient loading area. The spacious front room will hold ladies' and children's ready-to-wear, including high style formals and "French Room Originals." Men's wear will be featured in a second room; "Mulberry Lane," the section which is the outgrowth of the Estate Sales, will have its own permanent area featuring fine antiques, used furniture, collector's items, lamps and bric-a-brac.

PATIO

A large sorting and marking room with ample storage for clothing for seasonal changes occupies the rear of the building, as well as a lounge for working members and the managers' office. An extensive area in the rear will be turned into a patio where large items can be displayed and future "Estate Sales" can be held.

Carrying out the spirit of community co-operation, local merchants, painters, contractors, movers, decorators, and civic-minded individuals have donated time, materials, labor and advice to the opening of the Bargain Box. When news of the move was announced by the steering committee, businessmen in the area who were instrumental in the recent "house raising" of the large new building of staff headquarters for the Children's Health Council, called to ask if they could again lend their services to the effort.

HOUSE WARMER

As a result, an impossible task has been accomplished in a few weeks and not only will moving day be Dec. 1, but a "house warming" for auxiliary members, council members, staff and donors will be held the same evening from 5 p.m. The price of admission is a used gift for resale at the new Bargain Box.

BIG GAME . . .

. . . was the occasion for a celebration for both winners and losers when Palo Alto Hills Golf & Country Club members returned to headquarters for dinner and dancing after a bus caravan to and from the game. Above Mr. and Mrs. David Warner and Norma and Wendell Coombs arrive for the armchair quarterback session as enjoyed by the coincidentally football-shaped group greeting them (at right).

Pantry Party Planned

A tea combined with a pantry shower is to be given for the Sisters of St. Raymond's School at the convent on Dec. 1 from 2:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

In the receiving line to greet the guests will be Sister Gregory, principal of St. Raymond's, and Sister St. Helen, Sister Assumpta, Sister Anselm and Sister Lucinda. These Sisters are members of the teaching order of the Immaculate Heart of Mary. This order was established in 1877 and their mother house is in Hollywood.

Mrs. Emil Real is chairman of the tea which is sponsored by the members of the board. Presiding at the tea table will be Mrs. Frank Schafer, president of the Mothers' Club, and past presidents Mrs. George Klicka, Mrs. Joseph Fessio, Mrs. Eugene Kennedy, Mrs. Frank Deming, Mrs. Edward McGettigan, Mrs. John Foley and Mrs. Willard Tschantz.

Ninth Season Opens

First formal dinner dance of the Starlighters' 1962-63 season will be held in the Champagne Room of the Mark Hopkins Hotel, on Saturday, Dec. 1.

The theme of the party fits the decor of the newly decorated ballroom, and will be accentuated by table centerpieces in the form of topiary trees made of gold balls trimmed in pink. The gold and pink motif is also used for the dance programs and other decorations.

This is the ninth a nnual season for Starlighters and this year's Bal d'Or continues the tradition of chartered transportation from Menlo Park to San Francisco for members and their guests. Music will be by Earl DeMasi's orchestra.

New members who will be introduced at the dance will be Lt. Col. and Mrs. Joseph Terry and Mr. and Mrs. George A. Davis, both of Atherton; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Haener of San Carlos; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Tietz of Menlo Park, and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Baker of Palo Alto.

Among the guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Warren Moose of San Mateo, guests of the Sanford Mooses', Mr. and and Mrs. Walter R. Rieman of San Francisco and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Lester of Atherton, guests of the Martin Fields', and Mr. and Mrs. J. Luis Zabala of Menlo Park, guests of the Wendell Ulbergs'.

The committee chairmen for the dance are Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Herold of Atherton, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Boyce of Westridge, Mr. and Mrs. Cy J. Clark of Menlo Park, Mr. and Mrs. Tully C. Knoles of Palo Alto and Mr. and Mrs. D. Newton Turney of Atherton.

Bug Cases Are Gift Discoveries

By PROXY

Something new has been discovered under the sun. Its discoverers are members of the Menlo-Atherton Auxiliary to the Retarded Children's Guild who present their smorgabord dessert bridge today at Alpine Hills Tennis and Swimming Club.

Bug cases for the small boys on Christmas lists are the innovation created for this year's boutique table which will include about 300 items not including recipe books which repeat the desserts baked for the afternoon's delectation.

Sold out for two weeks, the benefit bridge will feature twenty-seven separate recipes prepared for the smorgasbord.

Menerton Tea Sets Holiday Mood

Menertons will hold their traditional Christmas Tea on Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 5, at the Veterans' Memorial Building in Redwood City, beginning at 1 p.m.

Featured as entertainment at the tea will be the members from the approximately 75-member group of the San Franciosco Boys' Chorus directed by Madi Bacon.

The chorus is inter-racial and non-sectarian. It is divided into two groups — a preparatory group and a concert group of about 35 boys.

During the past decade, over 660 boys have been trained by Miss Bacon and have performed with the chorus. Singing in seven foreign languages, they perform annually with the San Francisco Opera Company in performances at San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego and Portland.

They have appeared on a limited concert schedule at various benefits.

Mrs. Harry Kimball of Atherton and Mrs. L. M. Shugart of Menlo Park are co-chairmen for the tea which is to be a multi-benefit.

Gifts for needy children of East Menlo Park and East Palo Alto, to be distributed through the Christmas Bureau, will be collected as well as donations toward an educational scholarship for a vocational nursing student.

Artist Brodie Gives Yule Card Design

Artist-correspondent Howard Brodie has contributed two original design Christmas cards as part of the assortment offered this year to those who demand a card with a "double-barreled" message, one to convey Christmas greetings to friends and the other to aid handicapped children.

Oakland-born Howard Brodie has had a varied artistic career with emphasis on covering major global conflicts in Europe, the South Pacific and Far East for major U.S. and military publications. Source of inspiration for one of the cards, featuring a reverent theme, was a trip early this year to the area around Bethlehem where he did field sketching of shepherds at work in the fields. Further acclaim came to Brodie recently when Howard K. Smith's Veteran's Day television review featured battlefield drawings by the artist. The drawings had appeared previously in Life Magazine, Yank, Collier's Magazine and Newsweek. Brodie has also performed notably in the field of sports illustrating.

These Christmas cards, benefitting emotionally, physically and mentally handicapped children of the Mid-Peninsula, are available at the Children's Health Council, 700 Willow Road, DA 6-5550, and at the Country House, Ladera.

HONOR FOR COFFIS

James Coffis, vice principal and dean of boys has been chosen along with four other men to conduct a football clinic in Hawaii, Japan, Korea and Okinawa.

Every year the Pacific Coast Officiating Bureau recommens people that are qualified to conduct the clinic to the Air Force. Outstanding officials are chosen by the chief of the Pacific Air Force.

Along with Mr. Coffis, Ray Elliott, Jim Owens, a former Olympic star, and an east coast official will fly to the countries mentioned above.

The first clinic will be held in Hawaii from July 22 to July 25. Next the five men will teach in Japan from July 30 to Aug. 2 and in Okinawa from Aug. 5 to Aug. 8. Their last stop will be at Korea from Aug. 12 to Aug. 15.

Coffis plans to spend another two months touring the interior of Japan.

The 28 Legislative Council members met Nov. 9 and 19.

The business of the Nov. 9 meeting included a report from Treasurer Cullen Coates that the student body has a total of $3810.31.

LITTER

A discussion was held concerning the litter problem on the M-A campus and along Greenoaks Drive, which is caused by students during their lunch periods and after school. It was pointed out that three steps have already been taken toward dissolving the litter problem, (1) Bear Tracks, the school paper has written articles encouraging students to clean up their campus, (2) the Board of Welfare is now giving citations on the first littering offense, and (3) a hall banner and showcase have been put up.

Mr. Coffis suggested that each social studies class elect a representative to attend the council meetings and report back to their classes. This idea was strongly opposed because it defeated the original purpose of having a small council to accomplish more.

During the Nov. 19 meeting a new appointive office was set up. It is the office of Club-Coordinator designed to overlook the avtivities of school clubs and organizations.

Lynn Saunders, cultural commissioner, told the council that she planned to ignore opinions expressed in the recent student forum pertaining to religion in the upcoming Christmas assembly and send students who object to the library.

LUNCH HOURS

Peter Benjaminson, student body president, has launched a huge campaign to get one lunch period for the entire student body. As it stands now, half of the students have fourth period lunch while the other half have it the next hour during fifth period.

Peter plans to get every club in the school to back his effort. So far he has obtained large majorities of approval from the Chess Club, California Scholarship Federation, Junior Statesmen, and Bear Tracks.

Many good reasons suggest this change, some of them are (1) one lunch would allow clubs to meet during lunch rather than at night or after school (2) the school cafeteria would be able to serve hot lunches to all students in one place at one time, thus cutting down on man-hours (3) Board of Welfare members would be able to patrol the campus more easily because there would be twice as many (4) the school day could be shortened for games after school by taking the time out of brunch and lunch rather than classes as it is done now (5) students could go through the halls which would cut down on Board of Welfare work and enable them to focus on more serious charges.

The new acquisitions were winners of purchase awards at the Current Commitee for Art show at Stanford Art Gallery, "Some Points of View, '62." The exhibit features the work of contemporary San Francisco Bay Area painters and sculptors.

Awards went to Bryan Wilson for his large casein-on-canvas painting, "Curlews and Avocets;" to Art Holman for his oil painting, "Metolious," and to Faralla for a wood construction painted black, "Circle, 1961."

A general meeting of the Junior League of San Francisco, Inc., will be held on Friday, Nov. 30, at 10:30 a.m. in the Peacock Court of the Hotel Mark Hopkins.

"The Current American position in World Affairs" will be discussed by Professor John M. Letiche of the University of California, recent member of the President's Council of Economic Advisers and the Council on Foreign Policy.

What Makes a Little House A "Model Home?".....

The success of Little House is the sum of all of its parts and the total, after 13 years of operation, is something to reckon with.

Little House is known both nationally and internationally as an activity and productivity center for senior citizens.

But to refer to the bustling swirl of human endeavor as an activity center is to reduce its significance to the very lowest common denominator.

For Little House, like many another fulfilled dream, is the result of immeasurable intangibles – the stuff of which the reality of a $200,000 investment is made.

The enduring enthusiasm on the part of the sponsoring Peninsula Volunteers is perhaps the brick in the structure. It is a familiar story that a small group of women organized as the PV's in 1947, recognized the need for a senior center and established one locally in 1949. After 13 years of operation, their enthusiasm is undiminished; in fact, the contrary is clearly true in the attitude of founding members who have become nationally recognized authorities on gerontology; it can be seen in the devotion displayed by members who spend many hours a week working at the center; it is apparent in the enthusiasm of each new class of provisionals.

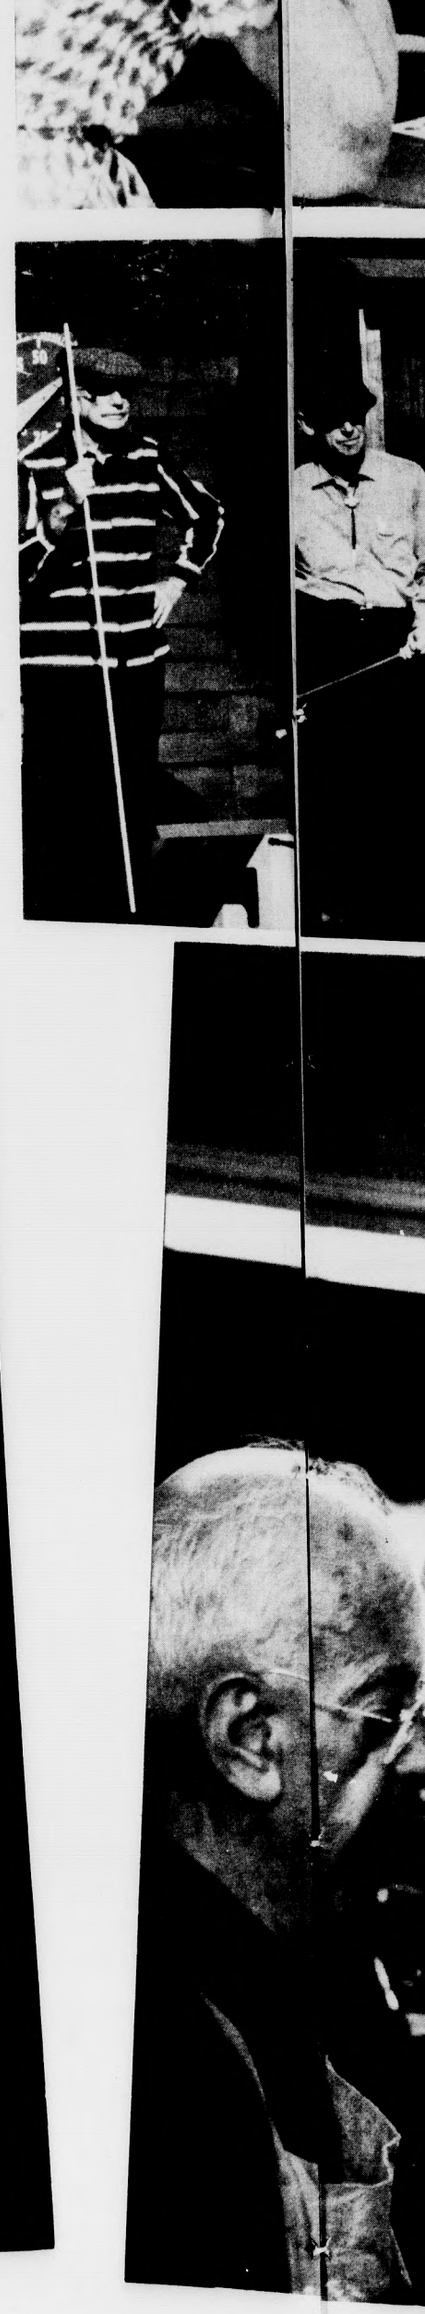

A current project is the Christmas bazaar which will be presented on Dec. 6 through Dec. 8. Little House members and PV's work for many months preparing the hand-crafted items that are sold to the general public. Proceeds are used for running expenses, which include the financing of the wide variety of courses offered at the center, both for the members and for the public as space permits.

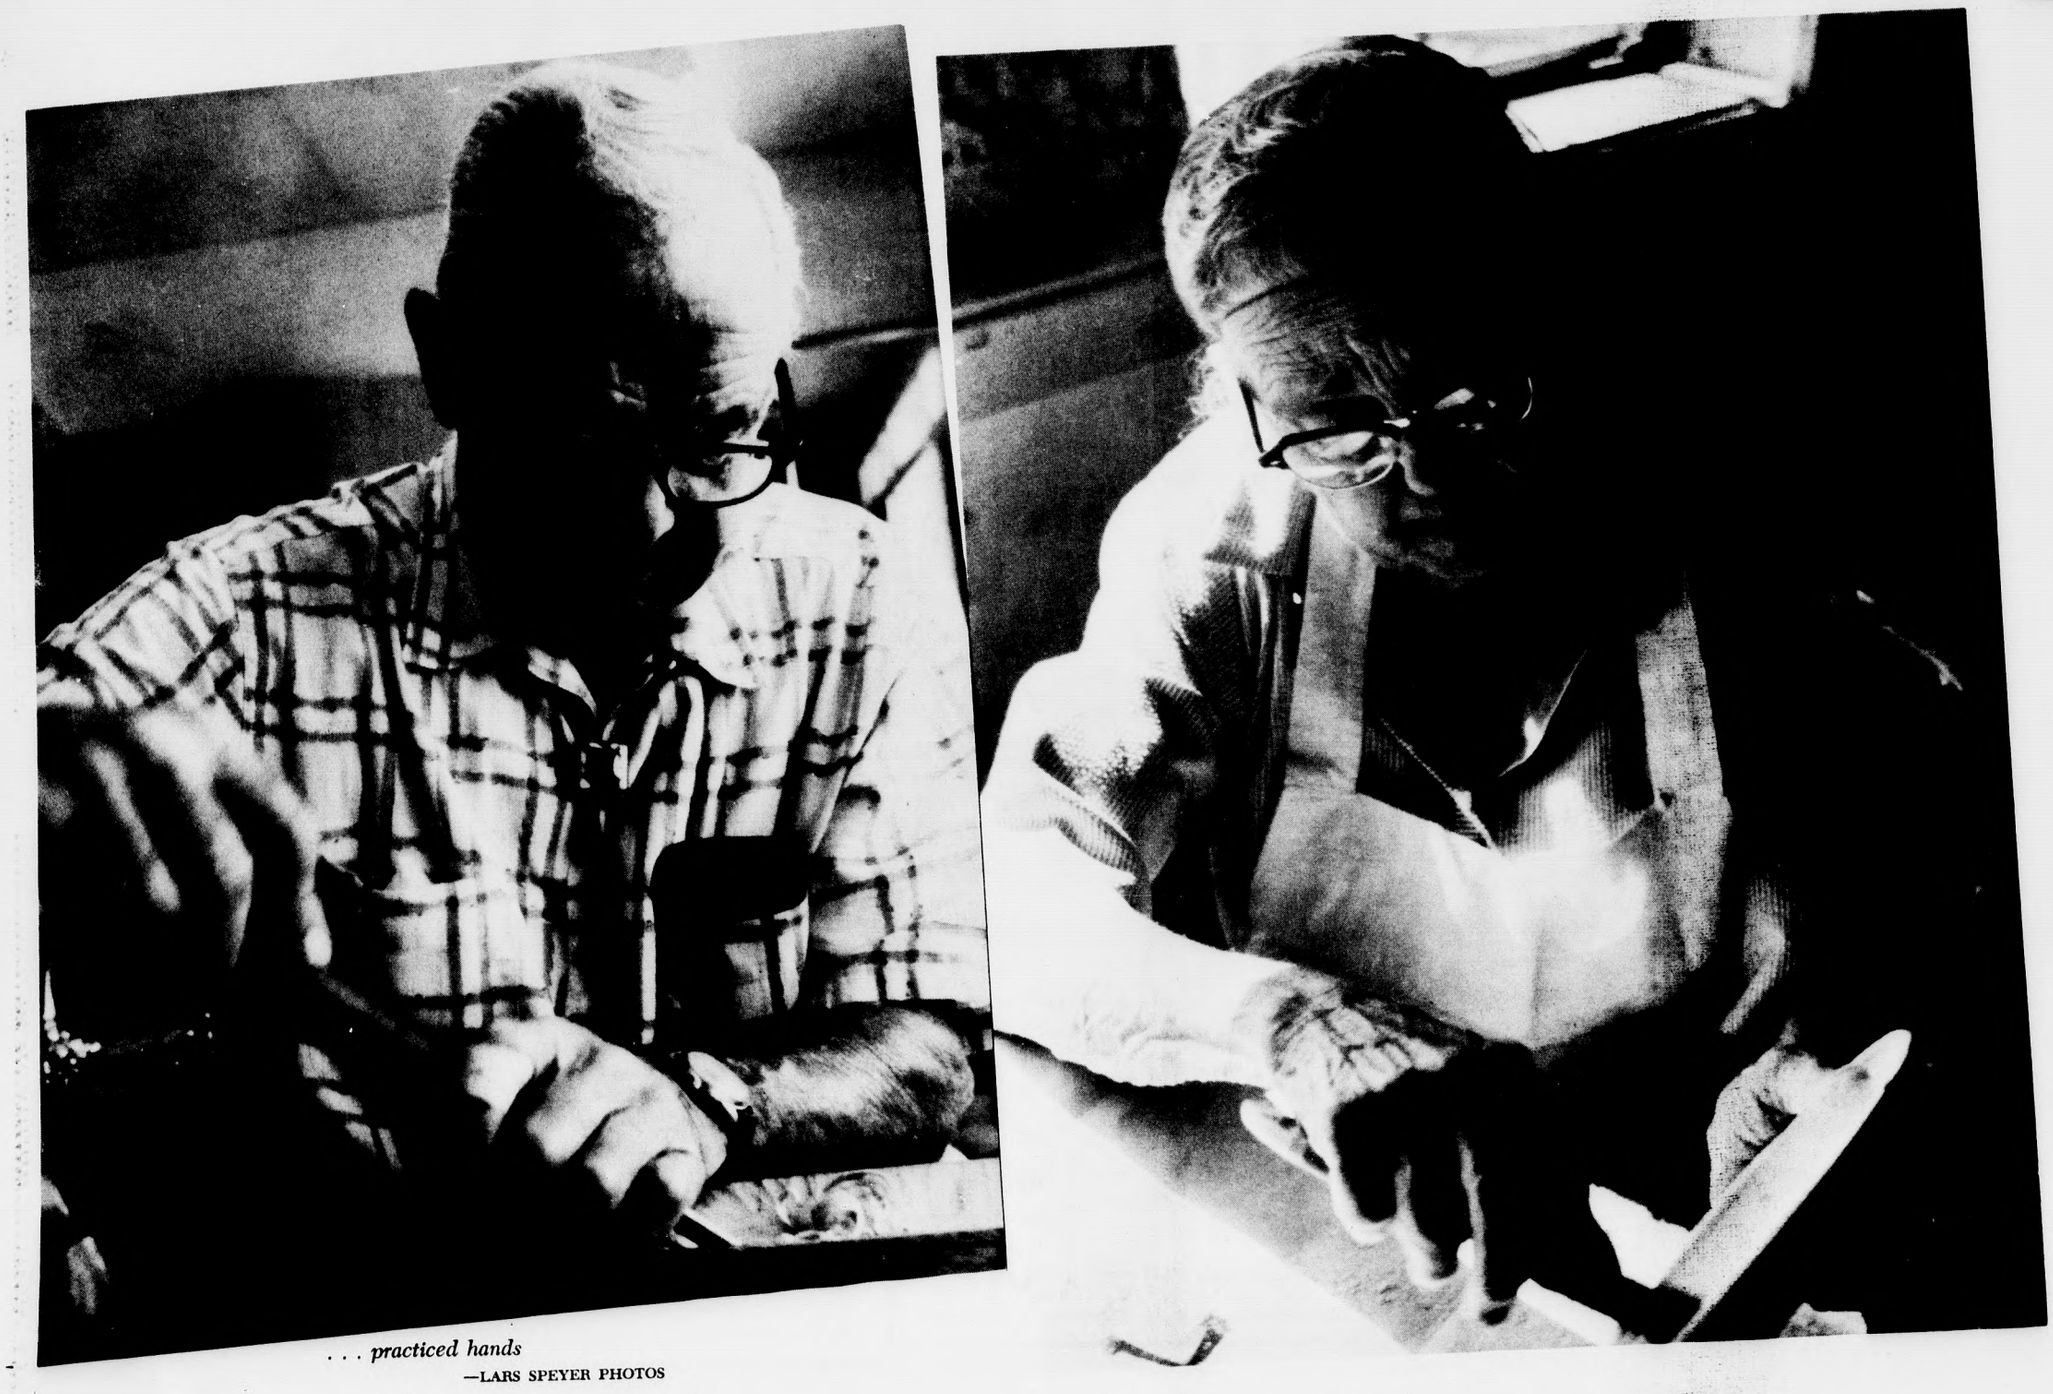

Visitors are always most welcome at Little House; charter members agree that bazaar time is an ideal time to drop in and say hello. Besides the sale of gifts, homemade goodies pour out of the kitchen which also prepares a hearty luncheon each week day and the special party dinners planned throughout each month.

Mortar for the brick in the structure that is Little House is the used potential of its members – a potential that society sometimes is inclined to discount. For at Little House are people who have successfully engineered a career, retired and now lend their talents to others as leaders, as teachers and as counselors. Latent talent, suppressed during the so-called busier years, is developing into hobbies and profitable crafts. As one member said kindly to a younger woman, "My dear, it's only when you are a grandmother that you have time to be artistic."

And then perhaps the roof on Little House is the surprising fact that no one has ever said, "Little House is perfect the way it is. Let's don't change a thing."

Surprising? It would be easy enough to look upon the operation of Menlo Park's senior center as ideal. And older people are supposed to resist change. The membership does neither. The format of classes and activities is constantly changing and the reception to change is immediate, vociferous and elicits a winning proportion of pro votes.

. . . you say you've never played this before?

. . . just a little to the right

COMPETENCE . . .

. . . manual dexterity and the ability to work creatively with the hands is not a lost art. Little House members prove it daily in the woodshop, the weaving room, the ceramic room and as they develop new skills such as the tin cutting shown at top right.

. . . have you heard the one about

Buffet Meals Planned

Little House Members Stage Annual Bazaar

Mrs. Paul Reinhardt, chairman of Little House, announces that the 13th annual Little House Christmas Bazaar will be held on Dec. 6 through 8 at Little House, 800 Middle Ave., Menlo Park.

An outstanding array of gifts for Christmas giving has been planned by bazaar co-chairmen Mrs. Robert Salz and Mrs. Ellis Gates with the assistance of Mrs. Robert Baxter. Little House members have been working all year under the direction of Mrs. Lela Smith to complete the hundreds of items offered for sale at the bazaar.

Featured this year will be many wonderful Christmas decorations for the home, as well as toys, household and garden articles, candles, ceramics, paintings, woodcrafts, fabric wall hangings, handwoven and handsewn articles and, for the first time this year, unusual and intricate examples of tincraft.

Little House members have prepared a large variety of candies, cakes and casseroles from their own special recipes which will be wrapped for Christmas giving.

Buffet meals will be served for the first time this year during the bazaar. Mrs. Peter Wuebel, chairman of the meals and menu, has announced that a buffet supper will be served on Thursday from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. and the buffet luncheons will be served on both Friday and Saturday from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Peninsula Volunteers and Little House members will staff the bazaar. Money realized from the bazaar will be donated to the support and maintenance of Little House.

The hours for the bazaar will be from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Dec. 6; 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Dec. 7, and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Dec. 8.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

Smith College Clubs Plan Bard Revisit

Bay Area League of Smith College Clubs, in celebration of its fiftieth anniversary, is sponsoring the gala opening night of "Sheakespeare Revisited" (a program for two players), starring Helen Hayes and Maurice Evans, Thursday, Jan. 10, at Masonic Temple. The two noted actors have not appeared together on the San Francisco stage in more than 20 years.

Invitations to the benefit were delivered last week, and many far-sighted, early-bird type people are ordering tickets immediately, not only for themselves, but to give as Christmas presents.

Tickets may be procured by contacting Mrs. Norman A. Zibler, 3320 Divisadero St., San Francisco 23 (FI 6-6039). Chairman of the benefit is Mrs. Emanuel Boasberg III. Proceeds will go to the Mary E. Wilson Scholarship Fund, named for a former headmistress of the Anna Head School in Berkeley, which enables a Bay Area girl to attend Smith College.

Mrs. George H. Pfau Jr. is president of the Bay Area League of Smith Clubs, an organization encompassing the San Francisco, Peninsula, East Bay and Marin County groups, and a membership of over 700.

Gail Morrison Becomes Bride

Solemnized on Nov. 22 at the Menlo Park Presbyterian Church was the wedding of Gail Blair Morrison and Larry Joel Smith.

Gail, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Morrison of 24 Mesa Court, Atherton, was given in marriage by her father, wearing a street length wedding gown of white peau de soie. Her white shoulder length veil was suspended from a crown of pearls and crystal. Her bouquet was made up of white roses and stephanotis.

Melinda Morrison, sister of the bride, was her maid of honor. Her cousin, Belinda Jean Rucker, was the single bridesmaid. Both girls were gowned in royal blue peau de soie with matching headpieces of net and ribbon. They carried white roses.

Larry, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joel Smith of Denver and a graduate of Menlo-Atherton and San Jose State College, named William Wiseman as his best man. Ushers were Bruce Morrison, the bride's brother, and William Long.

Immediately after the ceremony, performed by Reverend Floyd Barr, the couple was honored at a reception given at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Morrison received her guests in teal green faille with matching accessories. Mrs. Smith wore a rose beige brocade ensemble. Charm CHIT CHAT

Perfume . . . one of the greatest attractions of a flower, and of a lovely woman, however, one needs skill in applying it.

We are all familiar with the child, dousing itself in strong-smelling scents. This is not the correct method of application. With perfumes, the keynote is subtlety. It is best to choose one special fragrance that is "you," and wear it as part of your ensemble. Buy cosmetics with as nearly a neutral ascent as possible to avoid conflict. If you apply perfume on the skin the result is more personal, and more lasting than on clothing. Stick colognes are excellent for hot weather, particularly if stored in the refrigerator. Best places for application are the base of the throat, the wrists, elbows, or back of the ears. Perfume is also effective when sprayed on the hair. Whatever manner you choose, carry a purse flacon for renewing.

WHETHER YOU PREFER full or part-time work, you will find it in the beauty field. Learn now and earn soon. The course takes less than a year. Come and see us. Visit our school!
